The Senior Class

One bright September day in 1931 two seniors stood at the doorway of Old Main. They were discussing the freshman class which had just entered the school. "I'll tell you, Si," said one. "This here now gang of freshies is perhaps the most illustrious aggregation ever to enter the portals of Old Siwash." The other shifted his wad to his other cheek, and spat dexterously at a sophomore. Said he, "By cracky, Emmett, I do believe you're right. There seems to be something congenitally genteel about them. In short, I predict a great future for them."

And he was right. Little did that unknown prophet realize how neatly, concisely, and epigrammatically he had summed up the situation. In fact, "congenitally genteel" isn't the half of it. And what we didn't already know we picked up easily. In fact, we soon learned to pick up anything that wasn't kept behind the counters. But that came later.

By the middle of our first semester we had learned that it was not considered au fait to push the profs and girls off the sidewalk, and by the time we were sewed into our winter underwear we had successfully mastered the more intricate social graces, including the buck-and-wing, the mazurka, and the tortilla. Between cokes we went to classes, and by means of hard work, diligent study, and earnest tubing we managed to fool the profs into letting us get by. Rushing came and went, and the more gullible of us were signed up by the fraternities and sororities. What a thrill! Frat men at Old Siwash!

The next two years were noteworthy. During these two years the football team lost sixteen straight games, running the total to nineteen. In Whiting Hall there was a fire one night which threatened to assume the size, ferocity, and ravaging power of an electric light bulb. Each panic-stricken girl applied fresh lipstick, powder and rouge, grabbed her cigarettes and dance programs, and waited for a big, brawny fireman to come and carry her out. At the close of our junior year the renovation of Old Main was completed, and plans were well under way for the Centennial.

Then came our senior year. The football team lost eight more games and gained national prominence as its losing streak approached, and finally tied, the national record of twenty-seven straight losses. McLemore, Pegler and others discovered Knox, and dwelt upon her remarkable record. Old Siwash was headline copy in any paper in the country. In the Theater, "Of Thee I Sing" was presented, this being the first amateur performance of the Broadway stage hit. The basketball team won its second successive Midwest Conference basketball title. The debate team raged unchecked through all opposition, and the parties were noisier than ever. There were more pins hung than in any preceding calendar year.

Yes, we more than lived up to that forgotten senior's auguring. We were just a bunch of diamonds in the rough, and now, as we leave, in all our blinding glory and beauty, Old Siwash is indeed left in the hole. Our only handicap is—we hate ourselves.

The Junior Class

The Class of '36 learned early to rely upon wits rather than brawn. Small in numbers, they learned that as freshmen they could be licked by the sophs in the class fight, and that later as sophs they could be licked by the freshmen. So they wore their green caps and carried their vegetable bouquets, and when that was over, set about to garner every laurel that they could. Hence their reputation for being anywhere and everywhere, including underfoot, and for having a swell time doing everything and anything.

During the football season no one was more conspicuous on the gridiron than they were, and they helped to cheer and lose the games with gusto and a smile. During the theater season they made pests of themselves stealing or almost stealing the show from the members of classes chronologically above or below them. There is Lorraine Lindsey as the never-to-be-forgotten Ophelia, Fred Plette as all those things he played; the host of extras, property managers, ushers, and even audience.

Barney Crandell and George Donaldson uphold the honor of the class of '36 in basketball. Tadd Wake, Bill Pflaum, Marge Beard, Mary Miller carve a niche for themselves in their own quiet way, while Hal O'Hara does a little more militant advertising by carving his name on the chapel pew. The numerous Mary Louises—Tanning, Rice, Dilworth—still afford cause for consternation. The hirsute Don Thomas sets the pace for mustache raising. And oh, so many others.

During the whitewashing spree it was the Class of '36 that embellished the Santa Fe Limited, and which had to wash Mother Bickerdike. They were the ones to win the English scholarship, to put across the Sivasher and the GALE, and to write half the stories in the Student.

Irv Berg still doesn't know how close he came to being elected one of the ten outstanding junior women because of the efforts of a willing campaign manager, and Rebecca Harlan still makes unwary males walk miles and miles to escort her home.

And then there's Harrison Youngren, ensconced at the library desk, guiding the scholastic destinies of the many; Tadayuki Ota, whom we'd like to know better; Helen Landon, always concerned with "Whither are we Drifting?" Stan Wolkenheim, a newcomer, and very, very earnest; Eliza Oakes, with plenty of brains; Fog McLaughlin, his head in the clouds; Bob Klinger, who sings. . . .

Their story is a happy one. Work a little, play a lot, and then exams. Pray a little, write a little, and then the quiet, smooth flowing waters once again. Spring fever, track, parties, dates, classes—everything in its stride.

That's the Class of '36.

LERYL ALSEN

Leryl went to Illinois University her freshman year, and if you don't believe Knox is tough, just ask her! There seems to be a big attraction in the northern end of town as she isn't seen on the campus very much.

ROWEN ALDRICH

Quiet, keeps pretty much to himself, a swell guy. Rowen is developing into a good half-miler.

MURIEL APPLING

A transfer this year from Missouri, Muriel seems to have the qualifications of an all-round good sport.

MARGARET BEARD

You will find Margaret in the library busy at work at almost any time of the day. She sings in the choir, too, and does a good job of it. Margaret's will is something to be envied.

KATHRYN BENNETT

A living example to prove that bright red hair is a thing of beauty and that a sweet personality goes with it. Bud swept her off her feet and didn't give the rest of the boys a chance.

IRWIN BERG

An earnest, capable student. He writes clever sketches for the Siwasher and drags down grades he's not ashamed to send home.

WILLIAM BLAKE

Plays the piano, business manager of the Siwasher, and a general smooth guy. What more could you ask?

IRENE BOWMAN

Knoxville, Knox, and Delta Delta Delta are all proud to claim Irene. She has made a mighty good name for herself on the campus in her three years here.

VERA BRODMAN

A capricious little Phi Sig sweetheart, Brody's Pi Phi arrow has pierced many a fellow's heart. Ready laugh, snapping eyes, and a grumble with a smile behind it—that's Brody.

BETTY BURKHART

Her big brown eyes brought her instant popularity on the Knox campus. Betty seems to be the reason Bill Hanlon sings, "Those wedding bells are breaking up that old gang of mine."

OLD SIWASH

KNOX COLLEGE

NELLIE COOLIDGE

Peg is reserved and very unassuming, but dependable, and enthusiastic about all she undertakes.

BERNARD CRANDELL

"Beef" has a heart of gold and an unsurpassable sense of humor which he shares with us all in his articles in various publications. He's a star on the basketball floor and seems to have found Betty to be quite O. K.

BILL DERLING

One of Knox's really good football players. He's a bit shy, but he does get around among the "gur-ruls".

MARY LOUISE DILWORTH

Mary Louise can be found at almost any time in Seymour Library filling her mind with a wealth of knowledge. She finds great pleasure in learning and sharing her abilities with others.

GEORGE DONALDSON

The "Prexie" of the field-house, better known as "Sheik" to his Knoxville admirers. Star forward on the championship basketball team, and scrapping end on the football team and has a willing smile for everyone.

DOROTHY DOUBIKIN

Steady, dependable, that's Dorothy; she goes for the scientific in a big way.

JOHN DUNKLE

Entering Knox as a Junior he was immediately accepted by everyone and was well liked from the start in spite of being very quiet and unassuming. The Knox theater claimed him willingly from the first.

MARY EPLY

She's reserved—yes—very reserved. Why doesn't she give a Galesburg male a chance? Take it from me—the real reason is that Knoxville won't give her up.

MARGARET GESSNER

A madonna with a devilish twinkle in her eye, "Gessie" is blessed with a vast amount of common sense plus a surprising sense of humor. She is a girl of great capability and one of the most generally liked girls on the campus.

ELIZABETH GILES

A newcomer from Monmouth, she has a splendid mind and an unexpected sense of humor. We expect great things of her next year.

JANE GODFREY

Jane is one of those people who go about keeping their thoughts to themselves until they hit upon a really good idea and set the world on fire with it. Looking at her, you feel instantly that she'll make her mark in the world.

LORRAINE GRAHAM

One of the prettiest in school—she dances, and always looks like she has stepped from the latest copy of "Vogue". She has proved what "swell little girls" are made of.

ROBERT GRAHAM

The bass drummer of the band—has red curly hair and a big smile. A good football player, discus thrower, and has brought many genuine laughs in his comedy roles in the theater.

REBECCA HARLAN

The girl whose mind and tongue race in constant competition. Becca has the unique ability to talk herself into or out of any situation she chooses, and does so with amazing persuasion.

HARRIS HELGESON

"Coke", the good old "Cottontop", is a swell basketball player, and a hard-working photographer. More power to you—keep up the good work.

ROBERT HIERONYMUS

"Hippo" is the proud possessor of a nine-pound touring car. He has a saxophone and doesn't play it. Maybe that is the secret behind his being so well liked.

CHARLES HINCKLEY

Chuck's been attending school rather spasmodically and we haven't had much of a chance to meet him but what we know of him he's O. K. Friendly on the campus, smart in classes, what more could we want?

DUNCAN HOLBERT

Not known to many other than as the "Californian" for two reasons: Peg, and that unbreakable ambition to reach the heights of a medical career. An artist of local fame, in whose eyes one reads a balance of ideals, common sense, and ever present cheerfulness.

ROBERT KLINGER

Captain of the track team, a singer who can really sing, and a general "G. E." An actor, a habitué of the roof, and a hitch-hiker extraordinary. Remember that trip to Chi, Bob?

JANE KORTEN

With the contradictory characteristics of stern oxford glasses and an unrivaled "it" smile, Jane is puzzling unless you know her. Then you find the spectacles to be an ineffectual blind behind which she tries to hide her wide-awake personality—happily failing.

KNOX COLLEGE

VIRGINIA KOST

A true Phi Sig sweetheart—an athlete—one of the "best" on the Knox Student, and an all-around girl whom Pi Phi is proud to claim.

PHIL KUHL

Good looks—brains—personality—ambition—these and a few other attractions combine to make this junior. In other words, he's a darn swell guy. Ask any Phi Delt how they like him.

BERNARD KUMMER

Knox was really blessed with a swell fellow when this man came to school. We admire his tenacity and friendliness.

REX LAKE

Here's a quiet, reserved student who's managed to develop a real personality. If you want a word of good advice, see Rex.

MYRTHE LADD

Myrthe is the only living representative of the old school with her "blasé manner". Her position has served to guarantee her results, and she has managed to be a success without serious exertion. They say, "Still water runs deep."

HELEN LANDON

Helen strides about campus looking like a cosmopolitan in her tricky knit suits—a girl with a beautifully level head and a great capacity to get things done.

LORRAINE LINDSEY

Can you imagine a social butterfly bound straight for Phi Beta Kappa? That's Lorraine—equally at home on the stage, in the class room, or on the dance floor.

EDWIN LOVE

Another Phi Sig and another swell fellow. He likes his ping-pong and his studies. We wish we could see him more often.

ELEANOR McKEE

Fiery hair contrasted with a serene disposition illustrate the inconsistency of hearsay. Such is the case with Eleanor; either she is actually the very agreeable person we know her to be, or she has us all fooled. What's your guess?

RICHARD McLAUGHLIN

Dick has a splendid physique and a darn good taste for coeds. Dick played good center and guard positions on the football team.

ROBERT McLAUGHLIN

You're right, dear reader, this writeup is cut. What else could you expect from an editor?

REVA McMAHON

Here's the one who's responsible for the financial success of this GALE. After looking at the carelessness of the editor in regard to money can you blame her for worrying? We can't help but admire her patience in the bothersome details of her work.

WALTER MACNAIR

Walt is a pleasant person to know and has a new Chevie, and really knows where to drive it! Ask Walt.

BERT MALMQUIST

Every now and then Galva sends us a student or two. Bert is just keeping the old tradition going. He knows his figures so don't try to argue with him over the whys and wherefores of accounting—he's probably right.

MARIE MALTBY

How was it possible to bundle so much personality into so small a person? She's jovial, and filled to the brim with sunshine. Can you blame Gunther for falling?

ROBERT METCALF

Here's the type of man we need to lead us out of the deep and dreary depression. He's popular and has a lot of common sense. There's only one thing against him, girls, he's already married.

HOWARD MILES

Quiet, rather a mystery to most of us, but goes with Cordie and drives the Ford touring car. That's enough for anyone.

RALPH MILHENING

The Phi Sigs claim him for their own and the rest of the campus hasn't a look-in. Why don't you bless us with your presence once in a while, Ralph? We'd enjoy it.

MARY MILLER

Here is one of the few all-round girls on Knox campus. Besides getting good grades, Mary has a list of activities that one could read far, far into the night.

WILLIAM MINER

An officer in the R. O. T. C., a studious student, and a hard worker. He's O. K.

KNOX COLLEGE

HAROLD MEYER

Now on the track team to bring in some points for us with his good action in hurdles and broad jump. Never makes much noise but is well-liked by those who know him.

HERBERT MILLER

Li'l Herbie has calculus, Peg, and basketball to keep him out of mischief. But it isn't enough sometimes. He is one of our best golf players, and a sure winner on a punchboard.

DORCAS MORELAND

Dorcas is a mystery. Her dark attractiveness leads us on to believe that one day her true nature will manifest itself in a dance with castanets and a shawl. But we're still waiting. Dorcas is dignified and discourages our fanciful ideas.

VIRGINIA NEVILLE

Quiet, reserved, and studious best describe this young lady. She was lucky enough to have her picture scattered all over the country in the Post. We'd like to see more of her, though.

GUST NICHOLS

Gus came to school to learn something, and he's doing it. These science majors aren't easy, are they, Gus?

BOB OMER

"Good things come in small packages," they say. Yes, they're right. He's small but has a lot of good stuff—a good banker with a pretty smile, and a most ardent (?) pin hanger.

TADAYUKI OTA

Japan sent us this student last year but he's turned out to be more of an ambassador of good will to us. He's even learned more about ourselves than we have. We're glad he'll be with us for one more year.

WANDA PENNINGTON

A "no" from Wanda and you have a defeated feeling which comes from such an independent, determined answer. For some reason you don't bother to argue. But Wanda isn't all determination, she gracefully combines efficiency and quiet charm.

WILLIAM PFLAUM

When Bill debates, he gives 'em fits, and the stage is second nature to him. Another good student, of whom we juniors have so many.

BETTY PHARES

Betty's one of Knox's most attractive girls. She's a Pi Phi and from what we hear she likes her social life. She has a tremendous attraction for a certain Phi Delt.

ADA MARIE PIERCE

You can't help but admire this girl with her beauty, her modesty, her simplicity. She's quiet, much too quiet—but this seems to only add to her attractiveness.

FREDERIC PIETTE

One of the best character actors ever to grace the Knox stage. Fred plays his parts with a poise which is remarkable in a young actor.

THOMAS POGUE

One of the better Beta poker players. Goes with Jeanne—these lucky Irish.

MARGARET PORTER

Peg is the wittiest girl in the Junior class, beloved for the smile she provokes—a grade "A" conversationalist, an authoress, and certainly not lacking in "gray matter."

EARL RALF

A good all-around athlete. One of the Sigma Nu mainstays. And smart—a potential Phi Beta Kappa.

MARY LOUISE RICE

This girl is bound straight for Phi Beta Kappa. If all the Tri Deltas were as smart as Mary Louise—well.

THEO ROBERTSON

One of this class' funniest men. If you're blue and need a little humor to set you right—see Ted. Unfortunately for the co-eds he's tied himself down to one girl.

HELEN SCHARFENBERG

Helen transferred here from Stephens College. She has lost no time in showing what Knox has waited for while she's been elsewhere.

VIRGINIA SCOTT

A dependable and enjoyable Siwasha contributor with a priceless sense of humor. Originator of "provincial cracks" and a pretty swell kid.

ISABEL SIMPKINS

Isabel is so taken up with the intricacies of the science world that we seldom see her. She veils her intensity with a mild interest, but we know her to be really vitally concerned with what she does.

KNOX COLLEGE

CAROLINE SHAVER

Red hair, a sweet personality, bright eyes—and all this in one girl. If you don't believe she's all of this ask the Sigma Nus—they know her.

DOROTHY SKINNER

Dorothy has plenty of ambition and she's not afraid of working to realize her ideals. She's a Delta Zeta. We only see her in her busy moments but the few glimpses we do get of her we like her.

MARGARET STILWELL

The most truly idealistic and poetic person on the campus, Peg is the sort of girl to inspire sonnets. Yet she can descend from the heights and enjoy a joke or a game of Badminton with the best of them. If all Californians are like Peg and Dunc, let's have more of them!

CRAIG STODDARD

Stod is one of our most surprising young men. In his first two years at Knox he started out to be "just one of the fellows" but he became reckless this year and hung his pin. We can't blame him—his choice was good.

JOHN SUSTER

"Rip" is another one of the poker players. Quiet, but don't let that fool you. He's usually 'way ahead of you. And those shirts, John!

LEON SZERLONG

Here's the Tekes' pride and joy. At present he's engaged in leading them to new heights. He has a good taste for women. In short we like him.

MARY LOUISE TANNING

President, executive, actress, writer, scholar, artist, vocalist, editor, bag o' tricks, how's tricks—all received by hard work plus wit, charm, poise, culture, friendliness, efficiency, sincerity, conscientiousness, personality personified—Of Thee We Sing, Baby!

DON THOMAS

Ultra-smooth is what the Fijis claim for him. Lucille seems to think so, too. Underneath it all, though, there's still a little touch of the devil—he likes to have his share of the fun.

VINCENT TOMAS

We predict a great future for this man. He slings a wicked pen and isn't a bit hesitant about using it. We've enjoyed your contributions to the Student and Sitwasher, Vince.

PAULINE TORLEY

Many people think that Pauline is a quiet girl, but when one knows her, it is easy to see that she is really bubbling over with fun. We envy your pep, Pauline.

WILLIAM TURNER

One of the Phi Delt's bachelors. He doesn't seem to know it but several hearts are pining away. If you can ever see him long enough get him to do some card tricks—he's really good.

BOB TWYMAN

Bob is—well, a swell guy—plenty smooth, too. Runs the half mile, likes pork chops, and chose wisely from the feminine half of the freshman class.

LOUIS VITALE

Hard-fighting captain of the football team. Tall, dark, and handsome. We're sorry he won't be with us next fall.

TADD WAKE

One of our foremost debaters. Always worrying about one thing or another and wanting to do something about it. The Tekes hope he'll settle down some day.

NANTHEA WALLACE

One of those cheerful people who greet us from behind the library desk, always willing to be of service. We wish we might see more of her on the campus.

SANFORD WOLFF

Bud plays football, takes an interest in his studies, and is a good Sigma Nu—as well as making a good name for himself in the theater.

STAN WOLKENHEIM

A new member of our class—comes from Illinois U. You ought to see Stan tap dance. He sings, fences, and is no slouch when it comes to bringing in some good grades.

JAMES YOUNG

It does your heart good to know Jim. He's genuine and sincere and has enough ambition to work his way through school. Whatever he chooses to do after graduation we know he'll do well.

HARRISON YOUNGREN

Harrison is our big hope in the swimming meets, and usually crashes through with several points.

The Sophomore Class

The class of '37 enjoys an honor which has never before been realized, and which will not be realized again for another century. The class of 1937 is the centennial class. It is in a way representative of the efforts which those pioneers from Whitesboro, New York, expended in their attempts to found an institution of higher learning in a new and unsettled country. Numberless, untold changes have altered the appearance of this college since the matriculation of that first class. Could the members of that class be present at the graduation of the class of '37, they would probably register great astonishment and great pleasure at the progress of their little college.

This year has seen the restoration of Old Main in preparation for the centennial celebration. Mr. Ernest Elmo Calkins, a former student at Knox and one of the most ardent supporters of Knox, spent several weeks in Galesburg gathering material for his history of Knox College and Galesburg, which will be published in time for the beginning of the second century at Knox.

The Sophomore Class will be honored and feted by the college as one of its greatest classes and as a living milestone of the college's progress during the first century of its existence.

Knox has lost most of its connections with Whitesboro, New York, from whence came George Gale and his followers but Jane Mathews and Lucille Quinn have re-established one of the old connections by entering Knox and so becoming members of our class. We are glad to have these two girls in our class.

But the Sophomore's fame does not rest on this honor alone. Last year twelve girls were elected to Freshman Commission. These girls automatically in their second year compose the Sophomore Commission. Adding a little ego, this might be interpreted that the class of '37 has a greater supply of good material than the class of the year before when only eight members were elected. The same could apply to the number of men elected to Key Club.

In the field of activities this class has certainly contributed her bit. The staffs of the "Student", the "Sivasher" and the "GALE" flaunt the names of sophomore contributors who in this way have given vent to their journalistic temperaments. In inter-class sports the sophomore women have captured first place in all competitive sports so far this year, that is in volleyball, hockey and badminton. We have a good chance, too, for the basketball and tennis championships. In the various productions of the theater the Sophomores have shown their dramatic talents. The Military Department chose two of their sponsors from the sophomore class, Louise Herlocker and Tibby Johnson. Frances Landes, Pauline Krughoff and Marion Rose served on the committee for the K. A. W. S. Prom. Pauline Krughoff, Mary Eply and Wilma Lanning are representatives on the K. A. W. S. Board. Marion Rose and Mary Epby are members of the Student Council.

In athletics the Sophomores have helped fill the gap made by the graduation of the athletes of the senior class. Eight sophomore men shared with the rest of the football squad the razzing, etc., which the scoreless season entailed. Dave Arnold was one of the team's most surprising athletes. When he came from high school he was just a tall, gangling youngster with no particular interest in any form of athletics. However, he went out for football in his first year and made his numerals. He was one of the few sophomore men to make his letter this year. He is one of the new coach's hopes for a successful season next fall. Another sophomore, Dick Arnold, received a lot of praise for his playing and for his spirited chatter on the field. The Sophomores also had Gardner, Lillie, Hampton and Galovich on the team and all of these men made their letters. In addition to this Galovich was the first Knox man to take part in a state wrestling contest.

Remember Siwash's basketball record? How far could they have gone in the Midwest without Ericson, Burford or Stafford? How can anyone say that the Sophomores have not done their part towards lifting Siwash out of the athletic mire?

But these achievements were not enough for this sophomore class. Their scholarship index showed the highest increase of any other class in school. Here's to you, Sophomores, may your future achievements be as great as those of your college life.

The Freshman Class

The Freshman Class upon its arrival at Knox, immediately realized its position. Numbering nearly two hundred and rated as one of the school's largest freshmen classes, the students decided to test by experience the old belief of safety and power in numbers. At the half of the first home football game the Freshmen marched onto the field, threw their caps on the ground and announced that they would no longer button. This was recorded as the successful green cap revolt of thirty-five. Next followed a riot under the leadership of the freshmen girls which took place at Homecoming time. The Whiting Hall girls escaped down the fire escapes at twelve-thirty in the morning to engage in a little more Homecoming spirit. Following these two major uprisings the class reversed its spirit from revolt to the enthusiastic support of all school activities.

The class football team successfully upheld a two-year record of consecutive victories by defeating the freshmen teams of Monmouth and Macomb. Although unable to weather the basketball season undefeated the class was proud of the team's record—three victories, one defeat. Many Freshmen availed themselves of the opportunity to gain experience in the field of writing by contributing to the "Student", "Siwasher", and "GALE". One member of the class exhibited sufficient ability to be chosen as a member of one of the college debate teams. Entering into the theater, members of the class took part in every production. Several of them handled their parts like veterans of the college stage thus contributing much to the success of the theater. However, along with the several outside activities the class members were able to build up a good scholastic record which stood ahead of last year's Freshman Class and compared favorably with the records of the upper classes.

In review, it may be said that the Freshman Class entered all activities. The results have spoken of success. But the class hopes to attain greater achievements in the next three years. This is the spirit of the class of thirty-eight. Knox College grew and prospered for almost a century without this Freshman Class, the college could live another century without them, but they have made a place for themselves on the campus and if they were to leave, they would be missed.

Conservatory Juniors

ROMONA DUNN

If she plays music as sweet as she looks, the music must be divine. She's just clever enough to get her name in two sections of the college. She must be a very busy girl.

DARLINE RETHERFORD

Girls like Darline are a bother to an editor. First they are a junior, then they pop up as a senior. It's really disconcerting to try and keep up with them. Darline should be a senior and should be in the section above. We're sorry the mistake occurred.

MURIEL SNELL

She's so quiet we wonder if she makes any noise in the Conservatory at all. She must love her music for she is never seen on the campus outside the Conservatory.

Conservatory Underclassmen

The underclassmen in the Conservatory this year are exceptionally talented. The freshmen are: Donald Coe, Polly Coleman, Barbara Boyden, Arla Ecklund, Elsara Wallace, Earl Kunkle, Marguerite Manley, Charles Rose, Margaret Achelpohl, and Harry Tanner. The sophomores boast of Svea Anderson, Eugene Bonham, Wilma Johnson, Irene Gustafson, Dorothy Lundeen, Elizabeth Gray, Eleanor Maloney, Nellie Mullan, Dorothy Nelson, Violet Parson, John Shenaut, and Helen Stoner.

Several of them are ardent supporters of the Orchestra, Glee Club, and Choir, and have helped to develop the music appreciation in the college.

Who knows what the future has in store for these Knox students? We expect to see at least one prima donna, several composers, and perhaps a second Paderewski. They are a very talented group, and we should hear great music from them in the future.

But in reality they are doing splendid work. When passing through the Conservatory hall one can hear the strains of violin music, melodious tones of the piano, the sweet voices of the students as they echo forth from the various studios. But with discord and harmony they all acquire an education.

Most of the underclassmen are working toward their Bachelor of Music degree while a few of the students intend to take their Bachelor of School Music degree. Some of the students have not decided as to what degree they will work for. This is to be expected, however, for each field of music has its own particular attraction and it is the problem of the student to pick the one that is best suited to his tastes.

Men's Quartet

The Knox College Male Quartet has been promoted this year to a place of importance. It is taking the place of the Men's Glee Club of previous years which used to furnish the male quartet. When Professor Bentley discovered no indications of a Glee Club he selected four good singers whose voices blend beautifully to form a quartet. Gordon Voorhees who has been a prominent member of the Knox College vocal organizations is the only senior in the group. He is first tenor. John Smith, a sophomore is second tenor and Charles Rose, baritone, and William Gamble, bass, are freshmen.

You may find all of these men in the Knox College Choir. It is the fourth year for Gordon Voorhees and the second for John Smith. Mr. Voorhees and Mr. Rose are conservatory men and both are major students in voice. Mr. Smith and Mr. Gamble, who are in the college, have studied voice before coming to Knox.

The quartet aims to meet for practice under the direction of Professor Bentley two hours a week. Their programs consist for the most part of college songs. They have given entertainment on various occasions. They sang at the Alumni Dinner meeting in Peoria before the Knox Theater players presented "Hamlet". They appeared on a Saturday evening program at the Galesburg Club, at a Men's Banquet at the Central Congregational Church, and at the Knox Founders' Day Dinner. Professor Bentley accompanies the quartet at the piano whenever necessary as well as directs them.

Sigma Delta Psi

Ralph Humphreys

Sigma Delta Psi is an honorary athletic fraternity which was founded at the University of Indiana in 1912. Chapters of this fraternity are scattered throughout the Middle West. To acquire membership in this organization the entrant must pass a series of athletic tests and at the same time maintain a high standard scholastically. This year the only active member in Knox is Ralph Humphreys. Ralph is a senior this year and, unless some ambitious undergraduate steps in soon, Knox will be without an active member in Sigma Delta Psi. Mention should be made here of Don Sperry who has passed all the tests but as yet has not been formally initiated into the fraternity.

The University of Illinois Scholarship

The University of Illinois scholarship is granted each year to an outstanding Knoxite, usually a senior, sometimes a graduate. This year it was given to Gale Meadows, a graduate. Gale was outstanding in his college work, showing himself to be definitely superior in every field. He made Phi Beta Kappa and was very active in the literary clubs of the college. He was brilliant enough to go through college in three years. At Illinois, Gale will work for his master's degree in the classics.

Student Activities

KNOX COLLEGE

The Student Council

The first Knox Student Council was organized in 1910 at a professor's suggestion. The members of the council were chosen by the four classes of the college and endowed with certain legislative duties which were intended to bring the faculty and the student body into closer harmony. This new group thrived and finally established itself as a definite part of the student life. But it grew to be more of an honorary organization than a legislative body and in this respect was not accomplishing its purpose. So various changes were destined to come about.

In 1916 the Council took on more significant duties. It sponsored college parties much to the delight of the students. Moreover, it drew up a constitution which was duly ratified by the faculty and the student body. In addition it adopted as a worthy project the working out of a point system for outside activities and the working out of an honor system.

In 1926 a change was made in the composition of the group. Hereafter each class elected two representatives who were to hold office until the end of their college life. This would give the members the advantage of experience in dealing with their problems.

The Student Council in 1927 again took on more powers. It supervised the college elections; it appointed a social chairman to look after all college parties and other activities; it regulated the three publications of the college. It was indeed becoming an active organization. It is worthy to note here that after this year the representatives were to hold office for one year only unless re-elected to office.

The next and most recent step in its development came in 1932. After this year it was to be a judicial body acting on all questions of general interest to the college and was to have full legislative power over all campus activities. Its new constitution had granted the Student Council these powers. These changes were brought about mainly by the general demand that the Council should become more active on the campus. Also at this time its membership was changed. It was to be composed of a president and a secretary-treasurer chosen from the junior class members of the previous year; three juniors, two sophomores, and one freshman elected at a general election; five ex-officio members, the editor of the Knox Student, the president of the Athletic Board of Control, the business manager of the Knox Theater, the president of K. A. W. S. and the president of W. A. A. Also at this time a Board of Control was established consisting of the president of the Student Council, the president of K. A. W. S., a member selected from the student body and three faculty members. This board was to pass on the Council's annual budget and its finances. This is the present form of the Student Council.

This year the Council was very successful in its operations and as the GALE goes to press no complaints of any sort have been registered against the Council. Its officers were John Montgomery, President, and Don Larson, Secretary-Treasurer. We hope the Council will continue its good work next year.

The Freshman Commission

The Freshman Commission was chosen at the beginning of the second semester by the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet from the freshmen girls considered representative of Knox women and of Y. W. C. A. ideals. They are chosen on the basis of scholarship, activity on the campus, democracy, interest in Y. W. C. A., and potential leadership.

The girls elected are: Marian Backus, Virginia Gibson, Jane Henry, Susanne Klaus, Barbara Lass, Jane Ella McCanna, Jane Pasche, Betty Post, Virginia Reinecke, Roberta Short, and Barbara Winks.

Soon after their selection the Commission members were guests at a tea given by the Cabinet. The Commission helps the Cabinet by working under its leadership and promoting better acquaintance among the freshmen girls. This spring the Freshman Commission will be required to help the Y. W. C. A. cabinet sell candy and to help in its many other projects when Women's Day at the college rolls around. The Freshman Commission will probably be called upon to do various odd jobs. This year's girls were extremely able. They wrote for the "Student", the "Siwasher" and some for the "GALE". Several of them went out for the theater. They all took an interest in Y. W. C. A. and in its ideals. The Y. W. C. A. cabinet is proud to have such able assistance in its projects.

The Sophomore Commission

The Sophomore Commission has as its members those girls chosen to make up last year's Freshman Commission. They reminded the incoming freshmen girls of the "curtsy" due upperclassmen. The freshmen girls had to wear green hair ribbons and curtsy on command. For two weeks the Sophomore Commission specified other orders for them, such as, one day to wear a light and dark stocking, and another day to carry an umbrella and suitcase. (The Freshmen got a break—it rained that day.)

The Commission further helped the cabinet by assisting in the annual candle light service of the Y. W. C. A. and in its general work.

The officers of the Commission are: President, Cordelia Norberg; Vice-President, Bettie Whittaker; Secretary, Jane Pennell; and Treasurer, Mary Epley. Members are: Mary Epley, Elizabeth Johnson, Dorothy Liggett, Cordelia Norberg, Jane Pennell, Margaret Peterson, Lucille Quinn, Marion Rose, Louise Whalen, and Bettie Whittaker. These members, chosen last year for their ability and all-around activities—form the nucleus for the centennial class. They have engaged in many college activities and have considerably helped the Y. W. C. A. this year in its program. The Y. W. C. A. members usually choose the cabinet from this group. The Commission has justified its existence on the campus through its activities.

K. A. W. S.

The Knox Association of Women Students is the judicial organization of Knox which takes the place of the former Women's Self-Government Association, the girl's governing body. The Knox Association of Women Students has jurisdiction over all college girls but its influence is felt mainly by the Hall girls. It is required to enforce the rules and regulations of the college established for the well-being of the girls. This organization consists of twelve girls chosen by a general election. Disciplinary cases are not the only worries of this organization. They schedule parties and dances to create friendship among the girls and among the rest of the students. The Knox Association of Women Students opened the formal season with its Christmas Prom. Kay Bennett was in charge of the affair; Pauline Krughoff, Frances Landes, and Marion Rose assisted her. The affair was a success and K. A. W. S. is proud to have put on such a dance. Faculty teas were given in hopes of encouraging correct social contacts. They proved to be worthy of the trouble given to them.

Shirley Bogg served as President this year. She was largely responsible for K. A. W. S. having such a successful year. Assisting her as executive officers of the association were: Wilma Lanning, Elizabeth Johnson, Helen Johnson, Mary Epley, Justina Baker, Margaret Pennington, Joe Ellison, Jessica Gault, Margaret Gessner, Pauline Krughoff, and Irene Bowman.

Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association was established at Knox in 1884 for the purpose of creating a friendlier spirit on the campus. Its membership is open to all women students.

This year, as before, Y. W. C. A. continued the Big-Little Sister movement. Each new freshman girl was given a "Big Sister" who kept in touch with her all summer and, upon her arrival at Knox, helped her fulfill the necessary requirements of the first few days. This Big-Little Sister project was concluded by the Y. W. Faculty Buffet Supper which was to acquaint freshmen and new girls with the faculty.

The varied activities of Y. W. C. A. during the year included the candle-light service which served as an initiation for new girls, the masked ball, doll show, and the singing of Christmas carols.

The Silver Tea, May 19, was given to secure enough money to send one girl and possibly more to the Y. W. C. A. Conference at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, this summer. Last year Lorraine Lindsey was chosen to represent Knox at the Conference.

The officers on this year's cabinet were: President, Edna Metcalf; Vice-President, Betty Clark; Secretary, Dorothy Liggett; Treasurer, Mary Epley; Social Service Chairmen, Shirley Bogg, Frances McKinney; Social Chairmen, Cordelia Norberg, Anna Campbell; Financial Chairmen, Marjorie Campbell, Virginia Kost; Philosophy of Life Chairmen, Margaret Gessner, Louise Whalen; Publicity Chairmen, Helen Landon, Mary Louise Tanning; League of Women Voters Chairmen, Lorraine Lindsey, Betty Whittaker; Program Chairman, Margaret Pennington.

Whiting Hall Council

"Be quiet girls. It's quiet hours." To keep peace and quiet in Whiting Hall is one of the functions of the Whiting Hall House Council. Council members serve as the house government organization.

The social life of the Hall inmates is another interest of the Council. Members of the faculty were entertained at Wednesday night dinners to further strengthen the bond between the girls and faculty; the council sponsored special informal dinners and the formal Christmas and Valentine dinners. After the Christmas dinner there was a program in the Recreation Room at which time the girls exchanged ten-cent gifts. These were afterwards given to the Council for the Christmas party for the entertainment of the Free Kindergarten children.

The officers of the Council are: Eva McMaster, President; Margaret Gessner, Secretary; Jane Korten, Treasurer. The members are Francis Birkenbusch, Alice Dewey, Frances McKinney, Lois Baldwin, Margaret Beard, Jane Henry, and Inez McGaan.

The girls at Whiting Hall enjoyed a secret outing around midnight last Homecoming and managed to have a glorious time for about an hour before they were detected. This was not on the Council's social program for the girls. Certainly it was infringing on some rule or other of the college. But the Council was set for this. It saw that the girls came down quietly and got away without being heard. The Council points to this with pride—it's something that is seldom accomplished in any school.

French Club

Le Cercle Francais meets every month, offering its members a wide variety of programs. The meetings are conducted entirely in French. The programs consist of readings, short plays, songs, and games. At one meeting Professor Fay told of an interesting experience in climbing a mountain in southern France, and at another meeting Miss Staudt gave an illustrated lecture on peasant costumes in France today.

Officers for the year are: President, Elizabeth Clark; Vice-President, Jane Mathews; Secretary, Gale Meadows; and Treasurer, Harvey Young.

The French Club enjoyed a larger membership this year than ever before. Perhaps this was because of the excellent programs put on at each meeting or because of a general revival of interest in the French language. In either case the French Club is proud of its great increase in numbers.

To listen to French speakers, however, was not the sole purpose of the French Club. It was desired that the students acquire an understanding of French conversation. Most of the programs were conducted with this in view. The officers were required to conduct their offices in French and as far as possible the members spoke entirely in French. This had its drawback, however, for conversation was considerably slowed up by the lack of a workable vocabulary. This gave rise to many a humorous situation but in the course of their trials and errors the French Club members acquired a better understanding of the language and a greater love for the French.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club was a very active organization this year with forty-five or fifty students at several meetings—something very rare in previous years. This, in part, has been attributed to a male president being in office, also an unusual occurrence.

The meetings were held the first Thursday of every month. The business meetings were conducted in Spanish. Spanish songs were led by Jane Givens, and a Spanish lecturer usually rounded out the interesting programs.

This year Dr. Santiago, a native of Guatemala, favored the club with an interesting talk; Miss Donaldson, Spanish professor at Monmouth College gave a talk and several of her pupils modeled Spanish costumes she had brought back from Spain. Dr. Adamec was an interesting speaker, and Miss Coleman gave a lecture illustrated with slides.

The predominant issue this year seemed to be the Spanish influence in New Mexico.

The officers were: President, Sylvan Miller; Secretary-Treasurer, Peg Dietrich; Program Chairman, Josephine Ellison. The club advisors are Miss Coleman and Miss Staudt.

The programs were enjoyed by the students, especially the talk of Dr. Santiago. His experiences of the first few days of his life in the United States provided many a laugh for his listeners. As the GALE goes to press the new officers have not been elected but the election is pending. From all indications we predict a spirited election at its next meeting.

German Club

The purpose of the German Club is to encourage students in the art of conversing in German. At the beginning of the year some English is interspersed with the German, but by the end of the year German is almost entirely spoken.

The monthly meetings are made up of very interesting programs. The first meeting was held in the form of a steak fry at Lake Bracken. At another, Professor Campbell, who taught English in German schools was a very interesting speaker. The December meeting was held after a Christmas dinner. Two short one-act plays written by second year students were given at this time. Plays by the first and second year students were presented at later meetings.

Incidentally, the club placed third in the doll show which was very gratifying to the members.

Officers for the year were: President, Robert Gamble; Vice-President, Peggy Porter; Secretary, Mary Louise Tanning; Treasurer, James Welch. Miss Lindhal is the advisor.

This year's German Club was enthused over the great number of students taking part in the programs. The meetings were lively and the discussions were interesting. The fact that plays in German could have been given shows a large amount of interest. The officers should be congratulated for their successful year.

Christmas Prom

The Christmas Prom sponsored by the Knox Association of Women Students was held at the Armory, December 14. This is an annual event which opens the formal season at Knox. The Armory underwent a startling transformation under the able direction of Kay Bennett, chairman of the committee, assisted by Pauline Krughoff, Frances Landes and Marion Rose, Therman Tedgue and his orchestra furnished excellent music which made a perfect evening.

Military Ball

'Midst flags, artillery, and men resplendent in their uniforms the Military Ball again ranks as one of the most outstanding social events of the year. Battalion Sponsor Tibby Johnson and Battalion Commander Dan Roberts led the Grand March to "Hail Knox", played by Cliff Perrine's orchestra. The committee was made up of the cadet officers of the Military Department.

Women's Debate

The question for women's debate this year was, "Resolved: That the general welfare of the people of the United States would be best promoted by democratic collectivism."

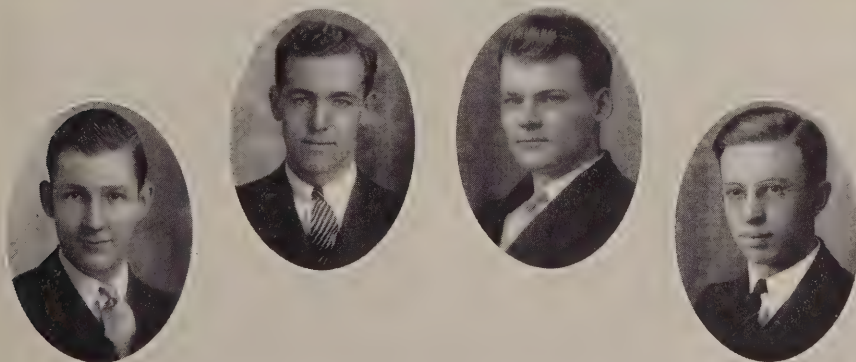

Helen Landon and Mary Miller argued the affirmative. Lillian Nelson and Mildred Nelson debated the negative. Both teams met women's teams from Monmouth and Augustana. Also, the affirmative debated the Wheaton team, while the negative met the Michigan State Teachers College.

Men's Debate

The men's debate teams had a full season this year. Part of the debates were the open forum, no decision type of debates, while five were decision. Of these they won two and lost three.

Each team debated with Monmouth, Augustana, Illinois College, and Beloit. The affirmative also debated with Cornell.

Those who debated were: William Pflaum, Vincent Tomas, Tadd Wake, Albert Finholt, and Richard Lindsey.

L. M. I.

L. M. I. is the oldest women's organization on the Knox campus. It was founded in October, 1862, under the name, Ladies' Mutual Improvement Society. Membership is obtained by tryouts of original compositions.

During the year both students and outside speakers appeared on the program, speaking on significant phases in the field of literature.

Officers for the year are: Alice Tate, President; Lorraine Lindsey, Vice-President; Peggy Porter, Secretary; Margaret Peterson, Treasurer; Mary Louise Dilworth, Program Chairman; Katherine Newland, Social Chairman; and Virginia Scott, Siwasher editor. The program was made as varied and as interesting as possible. Poetry was read, prose was studied and the literary efforts of outsiders were critized by the members.

L. M. I. was founded, as it has been said, in 1862. Those were the days of real self improvement. The slavery question was boiling in the minds of people, Lincoln was in the midst of his troubles and Knox was called upon to give up some of her students to fight for the union. That some women found time and energy to organize such a society at such a time is really remarkable. But another remarkable feature of this organization is the length of time it has existed—almost three-fourths as old as the college! It links the past with the present. Knox cherishes these few links in her history that exist today. If present indications mean much, the Ladies' Mutual Improvement Society will exist for another seventy-odd years, and still be as active as ever.

The 1936 GALE

The 1936 GALE has attempted to record the passing of another year at Old Siwash and also to recall the Knox of the gay nineties—the Knox that Fitch knew. The figures on the borders and on the division pages are old-fashioned; so are the typography and the general make-up of the book. It's a deliberate step backwards at a time when the rest of the college is looking forward to its second century of existence. If you like this theme, if this GALE has come up to your every expectation, then one of the editor's fondest dreams has been realized.

This GALE has not been the product of one person alone. It represents the time and talent of many people who have been willing to work in its production. We wish to acknowledge their efforts in the few lines that remain.

To Little, Brown and Company we are indebted for the permission to use the cover of the book, "At Good Old Siwash", which you see on the sub-division pages.

Mr. L. I. Lounsbury of the Pontiac Engraving Company did the sketches of the buildings that you see in the opening section of the book. He also painted the border figures on the edge of each page. We appreciate, too, his timely advice in the designing of this GALE.

Keene Crockett drew the six division page sketches. We are proud of them—they seem to catch the gaiety and the spirit of the times—all of which adds materially to the theme of the book.

Mr. Lass of the Wagoner Printing Company was never too busy to give some bit of advice at any time during the year. Mr. Harrison and Mr. Clay were very generous with their time and advice in the arrangement of groups on a page and mounting them. Professors Furrow, Neifert and Way contributed snaps and other scenic pictures.

Now we come to the ones who were responsible for getting you up to the studios, getting the write-ups in and the thousand and one things that always pop up in such work. For lack of space the department heads will only be given. The other poor souls may be seen in the pictures above. The department heads were: Associate Editors, Mary Epley, Virginia Kost, and Virginia Scott; Assistant Editors, Jane Pennell, Lois Baldwin and Marion Rose; Faculty Editor, Elizabeth Johnson; Senior Editor, Margaret Nelson; Junior Editor, Margaret Gessner; Underclassmen Editor, Ed. Seltzer; Organizations Editor, Mary Miller; Military Editor, Gordon Davis; Honorary Organizations Editor, Jean Fuhr; Social Editor, Cordelia Norberg; Conservatory Editor, Alice Tate; Theater Editor, Betty Miner; Feature Write-up Editor, Vince Tomas; Sports Editor, Bill Ralf; Intramurals Editor, Bob Terpening; Women's Sports Editor, Helen Scharfenberg; Snapshot Editor, Barbara Winks.

Special thanks goes to Mary Louise Rice and Peg Coolidge for their typing of much of this work.

Too much praise cannot be given to the Business Manager, Reva McMahon, and her staff. Jayne Miller, Howard Johnson, John Fellowes, and Dave Arnold were her assistants.

Whatever success this GALE may enjoy is due to this staff of workers and not to the faltering leadership of its editor. I hope they accept my sincere thanks.

The Siwasher

Editor Tanning

The Knox Siwasher, under the direction of Mary Louise Tanning, Editor, and William Blake, Business Manager, started the past school year with new editorial and business policies which kept the magazine at the peak it maintained during all of the issues, starting with Homecoming and ending with graduation. The Siwasher was issued every six weeks, making a total of six issues during the year. Guided by Tanning and Blake, definite changes were made in both editorial and make-up content. The size of the magazine was made larger. The changed form made the magazine much easier to read. Inside the covers the advertisements interspersed with jokes and comments were distributed between the front and back pages. As has been the custom in the past years, the content of the magazine was contributed largely by the student body and was as varied as it was plentiful. This year the editor cast off the ban on jokes and she very cleverly combined the two types of material in a pleasing and enjoyable form in no way detracting from the dignity nor lowering the quality of the magazine. The many different kinds of composition handed in to the editor consisted of stories, poetry, articles, plays, jokes and protests. Writing for the Siwasher was purely voluntary and no staff was picked until after the third issue was published. In order to be eligible for a position on the staff one had to contribute three times, and these contributions had to come up to the expectations of the editor. The contributing editors chosen after the Christmas issue was published were Margaret Stilwell, Harvey Young, Katherine Newland, Vincent Tomas, Irwin Berg, and Virginia Scott.

In addition to those students whose contributions have been published in the Siwasher much credit is due those who so faithfully contributed but failed to see their articles in print. Even though their work has not been seen or known by many it has greatly helped in building up a better magazine.

As well as hearing from many students, the professors and the alumni were very generous in contributing their time and material to the Siwasher. Throughout the year we were entertained by various topics, such as Russia, enrollment, reviews of plays, and stories of Knox. Among those who contributed were William J. Kostka, editor of the Modern Mechanics

Magazine; John C. Weigal, Fiscal Supervisor of the Illinois Department of Public Health, Dr. Elder, Mrs. Glidden, President Britt, and Professor Sherwin.

The circulation of the Siwasher was open to all students at Knox from the subsidy payment out of the Student Council fee. Distributions were made from the dormitories, the fraternity houses, and the bulletin board in Old Main.

Assisting William Blake in the business end of the publication were Harrison Youngren, William Hinckley, Robert Younts, Hubert Lacy, Marion Yeoman, William Folkenroth, Jane Pasche, Katherine Parkins, Justina Baker, Walter Macnair, Ellen Downie, and Marjorie Wilkins.

By comparison with the magazines of other colleges similar to the Siwasher, the Siwasher excels in every department. It was larger than the other small college magazines, it used a better quality of paper and in general the articles were excellent. The magazine was considerably stepped up by the color advertisements of national advertisers. Business Manager Blake is to be congratulated for this step in advance. Editor Tanning's editorials were well written and dealt with the various problems of college life which come up from time to time. The most unusual features of the Siwasher were the unusual cover and the general page make-up. We believe that the editor has published one of the best Siwashers of the history of the college. She deserves all of the praise she has received. This year's Siwasher is indeed a challenge for the future editors of the Siwasher to meet.

Perhaps one of the best criteria by which one can judge this publication is the financial success it enjoyed. The business men, both local and national, considered the Siwasher a worthy advertising medium.

The Knox Student

Led by Robert Gamble and Louis Anderson, the Knox Student had a most successful year. The business management of Louis Anderson was combined with the wise guidance of Robert Gamble to put the issue out on every Thursday afternoon.

At the first of the year tryouts were held for a period of six weeks during which time assignments were made to over seventy students who were seeking the coveted positions on the staff. An effort was made to cut the staff to a reasonable number which resulted in intensely competitive work.

The editorial policy covered varied topics this year. It contained discussions of national, political and collegiate affairs as well as those taking place on the Knox campus.

A new idea was originated when a special issue of the Knox Student was sent out to all former and prospective students in August. Another special edition was printed in March, which was sent to some 2,000 prospective Knox students. This was done as part of the policy of acquainting prospective students with all sides of the life at Knox.

In each issue appeared the "Theatre Column", which faithfully kept the readers informed on the spirit and life of those connected with dramatics. Another weekly column was "I Only Heard", which kept the students well enlightened each time upon the news of the sports realm throughout all of the seasons. The gossip of the campus was broadcast for another year by the "Knocks Student" column, and what it did not have time to tell the "Jinks" did. Again this year the Collegiate Digest, a roto-gravure insert of four to eight pages added to the Knox Student each week. This section presented a pictorial view of the interesting incidents taking place on other campuses throughout the country. In practically every edition could be found jokes, excerpts of poems, and articles of outside interest. The April Fool issue was again turned over to the freshmen who in an inimitable style presented many interesting features. Hugh Harris and Tadd Wake assisted the editor in make-up while Albert Finholt, Anne Brown, and Elizabeth Post were the copy-readers. Those who read the proof were Helen Griffith, Virginia Kost, Mary Miller, and Virginia Scott.

The responsibility of the sports department was carried by Sylvan Miller. Those who helped him were Tom Donovan, Ted Goldstein, Paul Higgins, and Wanda Frazier.

The other reporters were Marian Backus, Margaret Beard, Irwin Berg, Bernard Crandell, Keene Crockett, Gordon Davis, Mary Louise Dilworth, Mary Epley, Jean Fuhr, Elizabeth Johnson, Carl Kline, Jane Korten, Barbara Lass, Jane Mathews, Frances McKinney, Catherine Miller, Margaret Peterson, Virginia Reinecke, Marion Rose, Ed Seltzer, Harry Stevens, Lucille Szerlong, Alice Tate, Vince Tomas, James Trevor, and Harvey Young.

Those who assisted Louis Anderson in managing the business side of the paper were Bob Hieronymus, John Smith, John Stoddard, Virginia Anderson, Marjorie Wilkins, and Clifford Hoyer.

Much credit should be given to all who helped Gamble and Anderson put out the paper each week.

Board of Publications

Upon this group depends the responsibility of selecting the editors and business managers of the three publications on the Knox campus. As well as choosing the editors and business managers the Board assists in the selection of the staff members and general policies of the publications.

The members of the student body aspiring to either the role of editor or business manager submit their applications to this Board which then chooses the students whom they consider most capable of the position.

The Board of Publications was founded in 1931 and it is composed of five faculty members and four students. The faculty members are each elected for a three-year term while the members from the student body are elected each spring by the retiring board.

The Board members for this year were:

R. O. T. C.

March 25, 1935
Galesburg, Illinois.

Dear Uncle Sam,

Again I am privileged to write to you the current news of the excellent Knox R. O. T. C. unit, which has increased in size and efficiency under the strong leadership of Major Leigh Bell, who is ably assisted by Captain Edward N. Fay, and Sergeant Merl J. Fauset.

Early in the year the Knox cadets chose Elizabeth Ann Johnson for the battalion sponsor, the highest honor which can be given to a Knox co-ed by the local unit. At the same time the company sponsors were elected. Those chosen were: Louise Herlocker, Co. A; Betty Burkart, Co. B; and Bette Jane Neubacher, Co. C. On November 12, the sponsors were presented to their organizations during a special Sponsor Day Parade.

Don Sperry attended, as the Knox delegate, the 69th Convention of D Company, 5th Regiment of Scabbard and Blade, which was held November 15-17 at Cincinnati.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Knox Military Band went to Monmouth for the Knox-Monmouth football game. This year the band has been under the capable student leadership of Cadet Lieutenant Donald G. Larson.

On Friday evening, March 8, the Knox cadets escorted their sweethearts to the Roof Garden for a glamorous, unforgettable evening as Cliff Perrine and his orchestra played for the annual Military Ball.

The Knox rifle team has been unusually active this year. A complete schedule of its postal matches follows: January 19—University of Dayton, and Washington University at St. Louis. February 8—Oregon State Agricultural College at Corvallis, Oregon, and the Natrona County High School at Casper, Wyoming. February 19—Ninth Corps Area Rifle Match. March 9—University of Missouri at Columbia, University of California at Los Angeles, West Virginia University, and University of Hawaii at Honolulu. March 25—University of Michigan, and the Hearst Trophy Match in which 69 schools competed. On February 22 the Knox Rifle team fired a shoulder to shoulder match with the Kemper Military School team at Boonville, Missouri. Thus has the Knox R. O. T. C. and the Knox rifle team done its bit to help make Knox College known from coast to coast and even to Hawaii! Cadet Lieutenant Don Sperry made the highest individual firing score of the year of 384 points out of a possible 400.

The annual inspection of the local unit by a representative of the United States War department is to be held on May 13. This year the inspecting officer will be Captain George A. Davis. Since 1929, records show that the Knox R. O. T. C. has been given each year a rating of excellent, the highest possible.

Again this year a group of patriotic young men will accept in May the oath of a reserve officer, and again will Knox College show her leadership in the affairs of our nation and of her faith in you, Uncle Sam. We, of both the reserve corps and the R. O. T. C., realize the faith, honor, and trust invested in us by you in this privilege of becoming an efficient reserve officer, for it is upon the reserve officer that a large part of the burden of a national crisis would rest. You may rest assured that every officer commissioned at Knox College will ever remain faithful, and willing to make the supreme sacrifice for you who represent our country, and those whom we hold dear to us.

Knowing that the All Powerful will guide you forever, I am

Obediently yours,

GORDON WM. DAVIS,

The Theater Group

Everyone knows that an extra-curricular activity takes time. Many patrons of the Knox Theater have no idea of the amount of time and effort which director, stage crew, cast and electricians expend in order to present the very fine plays given here every year. However, anyone who has in any way taken part in the work of the college theater knows that from no other activity in school does the participant derive more benefit and pleasure. That this is true is well illustrated by the large number of students at the try-outs held before every play. It means hard work to be in a play in the Knox Theater, but it also means interesting work in a congenial atmosphere under capable direction.

Any member of cast or crew who has been in one of the five plays given here this year is a member of the Theatre Group. Some of the people whose pictures appear above have worked in every play presented here this season. Some have been in only one of the five plays. However, once a person has been exposed to the dramatic activities at Knox he is very likely to follow up this experience with participation in other plays. One contact with the college theater only sharpens the participant's appetite and fires his ambitions for more theater experience. This very great interest in the theater at Knox is due for the most part to the director, Paul A. Foley. The plays themselves are selected with great care and the minutest details of production are well planned. The cast and crew are capably coached. The people in the picture on this page are those who have given us this interesting and successful year of plays. As evidence that it has been an interesting and successful year one has only to be told of the full houses at both productions of every one of the five plays.

The Spider

Mr. Foley made a very happy choice in the selection of Ousler and Brentano's mystery play, "The Spider", for Homecoming. "The Spider", an interesting play at any time, is the kind of a play which would and did appeal particularly to a Homecoming audience.

The play itself is concerned with a dope ring, the leader of which in order to protect himself, murders one of his underlings in a crowded theater during the act of Chatrand, a magician. The mysterious appearances and disappearances of Chatrand, who is suspected of the murder, an interesting love affair, the suspense as to the identity of Alexander Chatrand's assistant who is a victim of amnesia, and the important question, who is the murderer and what is the motive?, combined to fully sustain the interest of the audience both evenings that the play was given at Knox. There was plenty of comedy interest in "The Spider", too, and this offset the "spooky" atmosphere created by the mystery of the play.

Having part of the action take place in the audience was an innovation at Knox and one which amused the audience greatly. The play was well staged. Especially effective as to staging was the scene in which Chatrand conversed with the spirits.

The cast included several veterans of the Knox Theater as well as some newcomers to our stage. The work of Keene Crockett as Chatrand, Fredric Plette as Inspector Riley, and Jack Miller as Alexander was particularly good. All other roles were played effectively.

KNOX COLLEGE

Hamlet

Professor Paul A. Foley accepted a challenge when he announced at the beginning of this year that the Shakespearian play for this season would be "Hamlet". Shakespeare's most profound tragedy, a study of the irresolute mind, is hard enough for professionals to act. But at the final curtain the audience was in general agreement that the performance was an overwhelming success. Like all of Mr. Foley's previous productions, the tragedy was played with an ease, a finesse, and a rapidity which connoted careful direction and co-operation on the parts of the actors. In addition to the two regular performances, "Hamlet" was presented twice on the Knox stage for high school guests and once in Peoria for high school students there.

Regardless of how often the actor's dream includes playing the part of Hamlet, actual production of the piece is not often attempted. Difficulties arise from the great tragedy of the play and from Shakespeare's use of the weighty blank verse. The tragedy was well managed in the Knox theater. Only the death of Polonius and Ophelia's mad scene raised perverse chuckles from the audience. The general slaughter of the leading characters in the play was received in all gravity by the house.

The production staff deserves a great deal of credit. Unique stage design, beautiful costuming and imaginative lighting were partially responsible for the effectiveness of the play. To anyone who saw the Knox production, "Hamlet", the brown clad figure of a cowed priest reflected across Ophelia's grave is unforgettable.

Of Thee I Sing

On March 14 and 15, this clever musical comedy by George Kaufman and George Gershwin was presented by the Knox theater group. The play, a satire on politics, was amusing throughout and admirably acted.

Two party campaign managers decide that their candidate shall run on a ticket of love, the lucky girl to be chosen in a nation-wide contest. Contrary to all plans the young candidate falls in love with Mary Turner, a girl who is not even entered in the contest, and "turns down" the girl who has been chosen to be his future wife. After the judges discover Mary Turner's remarkable skill in making corn muffins, they give permission for the marriage on the condition that Wintergreen, their candidate, is elected. He is elected by an overwhelming majority and the couple is married. Complications follow in which even the French government takes part in behalf of the jilted girl who is of French descent. At several points in the play a happy ending seems to have been reached, but each time the spurned Miss Devereaux turns up to demand justice for her wrong. The President is on the brink of impeachment when the news that he is about to become a father saves the day. The arrival of twins makes the fitting close to this fast-moving and thoroughly enjoyable play.

Chuck Eaton in the role of Wintergreen gave a fine performance, while Margaret Anne Achelpohl as the jilted Miss Devereaux handled her part very well, her singing being one of the highlights of the play. Mary Louise Tanning effectively portrayed the part of Mary Turner. The star of the show was Jack Miller, who took the part of Throttlebottom, the bewildered Vice-President.

The Coaches

Lloyd Burdick, former college and professional football player, was appointed to the most talked-of football coaching position in the nation and arrived at Knox in the summer. The team failed to come through under the huge coach who, after reviewing his season's work, handed in his resignation for a more able man.

Burdick revived interest in the fall sport at Siwash which reached its height during the week preceeding Homecoming.

Although this season was the most disastrous in the annals of Knox football in that not only did the team fail to register a single victory but also went through without scoring on the opposition, the fault cannot be laid solely at Burdick's feet.

Doctor A. C. Walton maintained the high name Knox has built in the track world last spring when his squad placed high in both conference meets. "Doc", as the team calls him, has a remarkable way in handling cinder men and met with much success in reshaping his material. His patience, his intelligence in the matter of daily workouts, his ability to command respect and admiration from the men who worked under him, and his sportsmanlike attitude have won for him a place close to the hearts of fans and contestants alike. The present season will be his last as active coach of the track team, for next season the reins will be taken over by newly-appointed coach Saunders.

Major Leigh Bell, head of the R. O. T. C. Unit, and who formerly voluntarily offered to coach the football team, was asked to assist Coach Burdick in shaping the destiny of the gridmen. "Maje" was well-liked upon the field, and his good-natured "riding" of the men often brought better results than brutal tongue lashings administered by others. Major Bell has been transferred and will not be with the athletes next year. His sole objective has been, "whether or not you win—fight!" undoubtedly a life-time's philosophy learned through his military career.

Athletic Director Dean S. Trevor, in completing his ninth season as a member of the Knox coaching staff almost rounds out a decade of successful team developing. Two consecutive cage championships in 1933-'34 and 1934-'35 show "Trev" to have just begun to reach the peak of his career. Strangely enough, he has developed the championship teams from no better than average material, teaching them the necessity for team work and heady, cool exhibitions when the going is toughest.

Trevor, himself, is as cool as his teams—never giving a pep talk either before or between halves of the game, relying upon simple, vital instructions to pull games "out of the fire."

Varsity Managers

Dependable, efficient managers are necessary to every team. Roger Emmertz skillfully filled the position of football manager. His job consisted of anything from bandaging sprained ankles to lining the football field. Always cheerful and accommodating, Emmertz did his job well. "Rog" set an excellent example for the freshman managers and Knox should be well supplied with good managers for years to come.

Harrison Youngren filled the job of track manager. His duties varied from supervising the care of the track and field to treating injuries and sore muscles. Youngren was the man for the job as is evidenced by the excellent condition of the track and runners.

Louis Anderson must be given the credit for a successful intramural season. Being intramural manager is, perhaps, the most difficult of the managerial jobs because of the length of the season. Competition begins soon after school opens and continues throughout the entire year. Louie has convinced us that all sports competition were run off in the best possible manner.

The Midwest Champions were under the able management of Bob McLaughlin. The untiring efforts of Bob were great aids to Coach Trevor in putting out such a fine team. Bob was always ready to render, in the most efficient manner, whatever services were necessary. His undying spirits did much in bringing a championship to Knox.

The Hunter Trophy

The Hunter Trophy, awarded each year to a senior who has maintained a high standard of scholarship while winning letters in two different sports, was won this year by Roscoe Pullen. This award, which has become more and more hallowed with the increasing years and which has developed into a real tradition at Knox, recognizes the great athlete—the keen scholar and remains the highest honor that any Knox athlete can receive.

Roscoe Pullen, in addition to having won letters in track and cross country, was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, member of the Key Club, member of the Athletic Board of Control, captain of the cross country team, and for the past year, manager of the College Student Employment Bureau.

The 1934 Football Season

In reviewing the Knox football season, little can be said that can possibly take away of the sadness, the bitterness found in defeat. If there is any solace gained by restating the maxim that one should be "glorious in defeat", then Knox can truly lift her voice to the heavens and sing "Hail, Knox All Glorious."

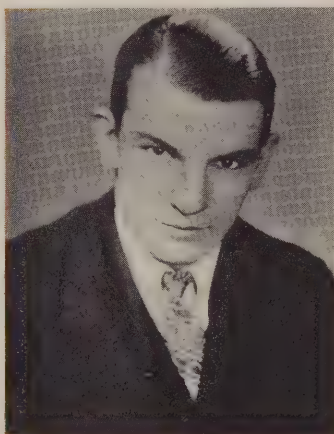

No attempt is being made to criticize the players, as participants—for they played to the best of their ability, nor to the coach who imparted all the football knowledge that he had at his command. The answer to Knox's problem is that the better athlete is enrolling at other institutions.

Coach Burdick, a freshman in coaching circles, made his debut in an auspicious manner. He told the team, the students, the fans, the press, and at least the Midwest what he expected of his boys. Whether because they did not have the bodies nor the minds is of little consequence as one looks at the most inanimate score books. Opponents, one hundred and seventy points; Knox scoreless in eight games! Yes, Knox's football record will survive for generations.

Truthfully speaking, Macomb proved a great surprise in winning over the Siwashers, 10 to 0. James Stewart and David Arnold were injured in this game greatly handicapping the Knoxites later in the season.

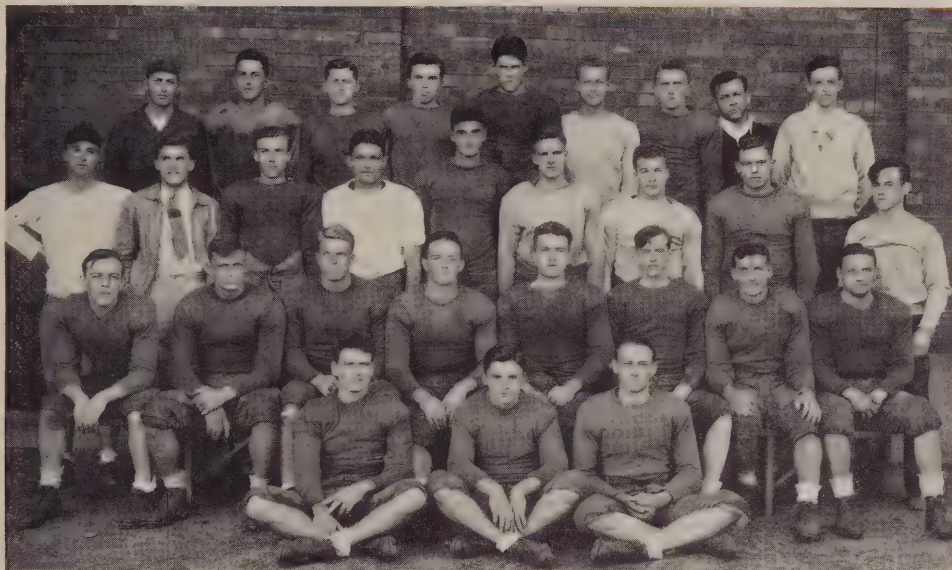

Lack of reserve strength soon made the Purple and Gold give way to a strong, fast, deceptive Augustana eleven, 21-0. Bobby Marack, outstanding scorer in the nation scored all the visitors' points.

Illinois College paddled in a sea of mud across the goal line on three different occasions to win, 18 to 0, at Jacksonville.

Beloit dampened the Homecoming festivities somewhat by handing Knox a 13 to 0 beating. Knox withstood seven thrusts at the goal line on five different occasions—all within the five-yard line to display an unheard-of defense.

Cornell, playing at home, scratched out a fluke 6 to 0 victory as Knox proceeded to run backwards each time it possessed the ball.

Coe came to Willard Field and went away with a 19 to 0 victory. The game was thrillless as most of the spectators concentrated on distractions.

Bradley threw everything at Knox except Hiram Walker's Distillery which was probably too heavy to tote on their bus, and pranced off with a stunning 44 to 0 victory.

Monmouth, ancient rival, added one more to its swelling total before their fans on Turkey Day. The game was literally (and almost figuratively) a track meet as the Monmouth backs scampered over the goal for a 39 to 0 victory.

The freshman team continued to uphold the custom set by last year's squad by winning both their games.

Prospects of a winning varsity team brightened at the sight of these yearlings. Visions of a championship aggregation began to appear as a team with weight, speed, ability, and brawn displayed itself on Willard field.

Under the supervision of Athletic Director Trevor, the men worked out nightly. Scrimmages against the varsity and among teams chosen from the team offered plenty of competition. In these games the work of Lackman, Prorok, Hoffman, Clemmer and Matkovic as linemen and Larson, Boynton, Stevenson, Ritchie, and Dibble in the backfield was extremely promising.

Feeling that the responsibility of ringing the bell on Old Ma'n lay on them the Frosh walked over Macomb, 13-6. Thus came revenge for the defeat handed the varsity by the Leathernecks. The second and last game saw the Frosh take a 6-0 victory from Monmouth.

WILLIAM DERING

Halfback

Bill came to Knox as a transfer student from a military school in Missouri. Bill there made the mythical all-state team for competitors in Junior College circles, which speaks enough of his ability. Dering proved to be the hardest hitting defense man on the Siwash squad.

AL GENTLEMAN

Quarterback

Al was too light to be of much use but was speedy enough to play a little of the time. He was voted a letter although he failed to play the number of quarters required. He is also a sophomore.

ROBERT GRAHAM

Center

Bob was one of the hardest workers on the squad, never protesting when inserted even though he was sorely injured. Bob's dream came true when he, as a center, caught the ball on the kick-off at Mount Vernon, Iowa. He served as a capable understudy to Racine and has one more year of play left.

RICHARD ARNOLD

Quarterback

Probably the cleverest signal caller on the squad, Dick was a conscientious player whenever he was called upon, which was often as the season progressed. He received and deserved much praise from the members of the coaching class which voted him the best quarterback on the team.

WILLIAM GARDNER

End

Bill is an ideal type for end play, being rangy, tall, and full of spirit. He could even punt when called upon as he was in the Augie game. Gardner is only a sophomore and promises to develop.

Lind

Vitale

Galovich

Hampton

Malloy

KENNETH LIND

Tackle

Lind, senior, will be sorely missed at tackle next season. He was one of the few men who never said die no matter what the score. Lind let out his feeling against Illinois College when it took the whole team and several bluecoats to stop him after the game.

LOUIS VITALE

End

Lou was one of the few three-year men who never saw a victory on the most talked-of football team in the country of which he was captain. Lou's best work this season was in the Homecoming tilt against the big Beloit outfit, as he served as an inspirational captain in one of the best defensive games ever displayed by a Knox eleven.

SAM GALOVICH

Guard

Sammy was perhaps the most colorful spot on an otherwise drab season for followers of Knox football destinies. Sammy was never taken out of a play, played more minutes than any man on the squad, and had the distinction of never giving over one yard to even the stiffest of opponents. Galovich is only a sophomore and should make all-state before he has finished his career.

HOWARD HAMPTON

Halfback

Howard had all the earmarks of an up and coming sophomore. However, his abilities seemed latent this season and better results are hoped for in this likable football player in his remaining two seasons of play.

MARSHALL MALLOY

Guard

Another senior who won two letters as a guard. Marshall was another of the stalwarts who couldn't be moved an inch. Although not quite fast enough to lead interference from his position, Malloy opened holes in front of him whenever called upon.

KNOX COLLEGE

Donaldson

Arnold

Wilmoth

GEORGE DONALDSON

End

The chatter-box of the squad, George played better ball defensively than any of the ends other than Captain Vitale. George completed his second season as a performer on the grid-iron and has one year left. Donaldson, playing the last half of the season with several cracked ribs deserves much praise.

DAVID ARNOLD

Fullback

Dave, another of the sophomore group, failed to produce much in the way of ground gaining because of early season injuries which dogged him throughout the season. His punting in the Macomb game was all that kept the score down for the luckless Siwashers. This is Dave's first crack at the fall sport as he failed to play in high school. Much is expected of this fine player in the next two years.

JAMES LILLIE

End

Another of the sophomores, "Boswell", although slight in stature, had plenty of ability. His pass-catching warranted his receiving a coveted letter. He will be back for two more seasons of play.

CHET WILMOTH

Halfback

"Chet" completed his eligibility this year, playing but one season under the colors of old Siwash. Wilmoth was the "speed-merchant" of the squad, tearing off numerous long gains. He was a continuous threat to opposing defense-men whenever he got his hands on the ball. Wilmoth began the season as an end, but was made into a back because of his great speed.

JOE BURFORD

Halfback

Knox was handicapped for a lack of ground gainers until late in the season when "little Joe" was declared eligible. Joe, almost single-handedly carried the offense when he was in the line-up. His change of pace, cool-headedness, accurate passing, and punt catching give him a good start for two more years of competition.

Racine

Stewart

Bohan

Lamberti

WILLIAM RACINE

Center

Finished his second year as regular center. Bill fought his heart out but failed to taste victory once. This season an injured knee slowed down the burly center considerably. Racine broke up many plays through his jarring tackles and refusal to be moved.

JAMES STEWART

Fullback

Jimmy suffered painful injuries in the first game of the year and never really got a chance to show his worth. Again in the Monmouth game, he was injured in the first few minutes and was taken to the hospital. Fans are hoping that Jimmy's injuries leave him during the two years he has left to play.

JAMES BOHAN

Tackle

"Tiny" was the big boy of the squad, tipping the scales at about 230 pounds. Bohan earned a letter this season as one of the thirteen sophomores who might come along under the proper instruction. Bohan never quite got pepped-up enough to make him outstanding although opposing linemen were forced to admit that he was hard to move.

ALFRED LAMBERTI

Quarterback

"Lambie" wasn't able to start practice until after the second game due to an illness which slowed him for the remainder of the season. Lamberti's junior year proved to be his most successful in effective ball-toting.

KNOX COLLEGE

Welch

JAMES WELCH

Tackle

"Doc" was handicapped by an ailment to his eyes. However, he was honored with a berth on the mythical all-state second team. "Doc" has two more seasons of play left and with a winning team behind him, he should easily make the first team.

RICHARD McLAUGHLIN

Guard

Dick played enough quarters to earn his letter this season despite the presence of Lang, who played regularly. McLaughlin was a determined player, although his teammates nicknamed him "Fog" because of his tendency to forget to charge while on defense.

GUS GUTHRIE

Fullback

Gus is a new man to Knox athletic teams this year and has much promise for a better season in 1935 with a winning team. Gus was a fast, alert, hard-driving fullback, playing equally well on defense and offense.

FRANK WITTENBERGER

Tackle

Wittenberger was awarded a letter in his first season on the varsity. He could always be found at the bottom of any pile-up and if not there was often penalized for using his arms too freely in the open, which cost Knox many precious yards. His work, especially in the Coe game, was worthy of praise.

Not in Picture:

DON LANG

Guard

The toughest man on the squad, "Butch" tore up the opposition for the last time this year. Together with Galovich, these two men formed one of the best pair of guards in the conference despite the fact that they played on a losing team.

The 1934-35 Basketball Season

Very few followers of Knox basketball thought that a better-than-average team could be placed on the floor by Trevor with the material he had. For a nucleus he had captain-elect Lewis, Donaldson, and Crandell from the 1933-34 co-champions. Gaps left by the graduation of Kelly, Bowman, and John Lewis must be filled from last year's reserves and new sophomore talent.

Joe Burford, a sophomore, and Bob Stafford, who possessed a potential left-handed toss, soon made the grade and were playing regularly. Eureka was Knox's first foe, a Little Nineteen contestant. Knox won 32-30 in an overtime. The game was "all Knox" until the final hysterical rush by Eureka. Carthage, led by all-state Markel, was defeated 23 to 22 in an interesting though not particularly exciting game.

Coe, Knox's first Midwest foe was beaten easily, 33 to 23, and at last the Siwashers were gaining their stride as Trevor brought them along slowly. Monmouth, always dangerous was met on the local floor and was handed a bitter 34 to 12 defeat.

Augustana was the first trip for the Siwashers and the novelty evidently had an effect, for Knox lost 42 to 31, due to the brilliant work of Czerwinski. Bradley visited the locals on January 25th and lost 38 to 23.

In a well-played game before a capacity crowd at the Armory, the Siwashers lost to Macomb 39 to 30, definitely losing claim to the Little Nineteen title. This game was the last for Joe Burford as his grades kept him from competition.

Ericson played his first game and helped Knox defeat the luckless Bradley Redskins, 35 to 25. In the next game, followers were fearful lest Monmouth break loose. However, the Trevormen handed them a 30 to 27 loss, defeating them twice in one season for the first time in many years.

Coach Trevor

Thompson, Derby, Dibble, Ritchie, Stevenson, Boynton, Smith

Much ballyhoo preceded the next Augie-Knox game, and as Crandell trifled with the giant Mead the Knox men won, 29 to 23.

Macomb, later crowned I. I. A. C. champions, defeated Knox again 38 to 37 in one of the greatest, wildest exhibitions of classy basket-shooting ever seen on the Macomb floor.

Cornell invaded the Knox stronghold February 22nd and in a well-played game the Siwashers baffled the Iowans with sparkling basket-shooting to win 39 to 30.

Knox swung into Iowa for its annual invasion, and defeated Coe and Cornell on successive nights making it two in a row over both teams and clinching the Midwest title with six victories and no defeats. Coe was beaten 43 to 28 and Cornell 31 to 29.

Knox scored 465 points in 14 games to their opponents' 394.

The class of '88 presented one of the best freshman cage teams ever to represent Knox. Under the able direction of Coach George Bowman, a Knox basketball and track star for the past three seasons, the team won three of its annual four games.

Coach Bowman presented an outfit that had everything essential to a good team. It had height, speed, ability and accuracy. The squad had five men who passed the six foot two inch mark.

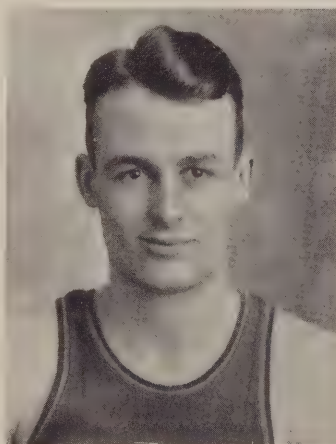

Augustana was the first victim of the classy Knox quintet, falling at the wayside by a 33 to 13 score. The Knox yearlings led all the way and were at no time threatened. Monmouth, offering stiffer competition, held the winners to a 15-13 score. The game was rather roughly played, Knox getting a slow start.

In the return game with Monmouth, Knox lost its only game in a hard-fought battle. The game ended 31 to 28.

In the final game of the season, the Knox frosh again beat Augustana. This time by a 28-22 score.

"Hooker" Smith was high scorer of the season with 27 points. Jim Trevor and Tom Clemmer were close at his heels with 21 points each.

Thirteen numerals were awarded at the end of the season. The men earning numerals were: Abbot, Smith, Trevor, Boynton, Dibble, Derby, Wiltzie, Stevenson, Foley, Ritchie, Clemmer, Clem Thompson, and Clavey.

KNOX COLLEGE

Larson

DON LARSON

Forward

Larson, a Senior, won a "K" after three years of hard work. Don had amazing speed and a fair eye for the basket, but Donaldson had the edge over him in variety of attack. Larson did not quite measure up to what was required these past few years of excellent basketball teams at Knox—however, his temperament kept the first team on its toes throughout the season's grind.

DON HERLOCKER

Guard

Don was a reserve for three years on better-than-average cage teams. Perhaps almost at any other school "Herky" would have made the grade but he was forced to understudy some talented basketball players. Herlocker lacked the polish needed by men performing for Trevor in the past few seasons, but managed to play enough in his senior year to earn a letter. His closeness in guarding contained but one objection—he invariably fouled his opponent.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM LEWIS

Guard

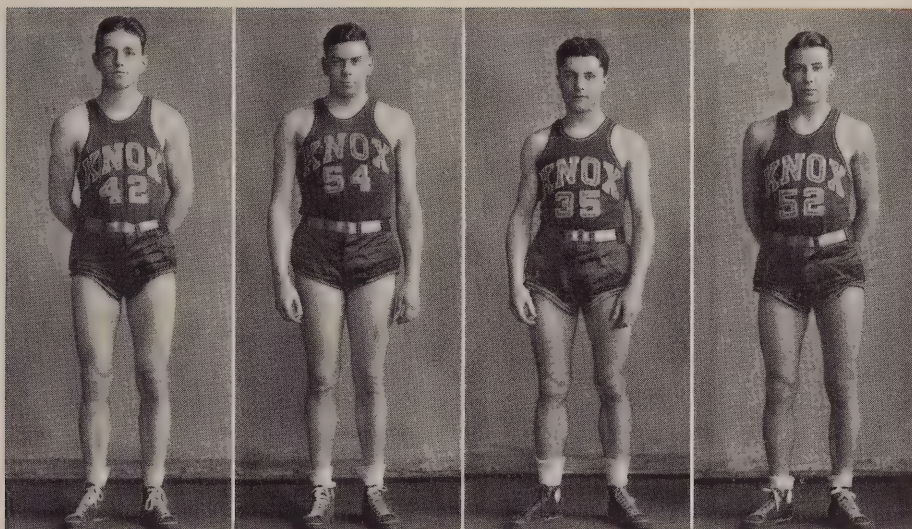

Honored by a position on the mythical all-state quintet in his Junior year, Bill met concerted opposition from foes as the captain of the Midwest champions. He showed his true ability this season as he led the Siwash scorers under pressure as well as guarding the best man the opposition offered. Lewis maintained an average of 10.6 points per game and placed high among conference scorers.

JOE BURFORD

Guard

Little Joe was one of the most remarkable men on the team. He is only a sophomore and went out for basketball in the late Fall to keep in condition. However, as December merged into January, Joe's eye, his shiftiness, wonderful ball-handling, dribbling ability, and craftiness did not escape the observant eye of Trevor, and Joe was a regular. Joe's career was cut short, however, as the scholastic axe severed him from athletics in mid-season.

Stafford

Crandell

Donaldson

Ericson

BOB STAFFORD

Forward

Bob played on his first college championship team this year, being only a sophomore. His height, drive, and extraordinary ability in retrieving balls off either bankboard while scrimmaging soon left little doubt in Coach Trevor's mind as to whom would be teamed with Donaldson. Stafford was slowed considerably due to a trick knee and his one-handed shots were at first inaccurate as his leg failed to support him. However, in the last five games Stafford came through in praiseworthy manner, scoring when needed.

BERNARD CRANDELL

Center

"Beef" was the governor of the team. His work at the pivot post, though not flashy, is steady. His coolness in the thickest of fights was more than once responsible for a well-earned Knox victory. Crandell is also but a Junior and seems certain to cavort at his favorite position again next winter. His work kept the level-headed players at top form all season.

GEORGE DONALDSON

Forward

One of the trickiest players to don a suit for Siwash in several years, Donaldson did more than his share in bringing the second consecutive Midwest championship to Knox. George was second to Lewis in points scored and is a Junior, which leaves him one more year in which to shine. If with another year he progresses in ability as he has done to date, next season Donaldson should prove plenty troublesome to conference guards.

MILTON ERICSON

Guard

After Burford had been declared ineligible, Trevor cast about for a likely substitute. Ericson, who became a Sophomore in February, took up the reins where Burford had left them, and did a remarkable bit of work to earn a "K". His speed in the Cornell game here as well as in the Coe game at Cedar Rapids brought much-needed scoring at the right time. Milt's one weakness was at the free-throw line.

The 1934 Track Season

Knox's first meet was the Quadrangular meet at Monmouth. The competitors were Chicago, Bradley, Monmouth, and Knox. The Siwash thin-clads encountered stiff competition from Chicago. At the start of the season the Siwashers appeared only mediocre, but the squad improved gradually as the season wore on.

Knox was represented on the field by Westerfield and Twyman in the half-mile event, by Pullen and Sperry in the two-mile event, Westerfield in the 880 and Klinger and Herlocker in the quarter mile run, Finley in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, while Captain Bowman and Humphreys handled the hurdles, the latter also excelled in the high jump. Humphreys was remarkable in this event because his being a small man made it necessary for him to jump from four to six inches over his head. Knox also boasted of a fast-stepping mile relay quartet composed of Herlocker, Twyman, Finley and Klinger. In the field events Knox relied on John Lewis in the javelin and the pole vault. Wolf threw the shot put and the discus, Riel threw the javelin and Baker was in the broad jump. Kelly was an excellent pole-vaulter along with John Lewis.

In their first meet, the Quadrangular meet at Monmouth, Siwash showed surprising strength by winning second place. The outstanding Knox men were Klinger, Lewis, Wolf and Bowman. Klinger showed much promise in the quarter mile run by stepping it off in 52 seconds. Wolf showed a surprise by hurling the discus 121 feet. Considering it was the start of track season the squad did remarkably well.

Siwash in her next track endeavor soundly trounced the Macomb Leathernecks, defeating them 80-51 and winning 9 out of 15 events. Bowman starred in this meet by scoring wins in both hurdle events and placing third in the broad jump. Lewis showed vast improvement in the javelin by tossing it 174 feet.

The Siwasher's next foe was Monmouth. Knox won this close dual meet due to an unexpected victory in the mile relay event, mainly due to Klinger's brilliant finish when he breasted the tape four feet ahead of Irwin of Monmouth. This was a dramatic finish because Knox's relay team had been previously beaten by Monmouth in the Quadrangular meet. No little praise should be given to Herlocker, Twyman and Finley in this event. Pullen won both the distance runs handily.

Coach Walton

Herlocker, Westerfield, Finley, Twyman, Klinger

The Midwest meet was the next track endeavor for the Siwashers. One of the outstanding events was Klinger's winning the 440 dash. Bob was 15 yards behind the pack at the pole but on going around the turn let out his powerful stride and with a powerful finish he breezed into the tape ahead of his nearest rival by two yards. Knox undoubtedly would have won the meet had it not been for a pain in Pullen's side while running the two mile event.

John Lewis again was outstanding for Knox. He broke the pole vault record with Kelly at 12 feet 9 inches. John also made a record heave with the javelin with a toss of 183 feet. The mile relay team won again with the usual thrilling finish. Knox only trailed Carleton, the winner by 4 points, mainly due to Herman, Carleton's dash specialist who won the 100 and 220 dashes.

Knox garnered many unexpected achievements in the state meet by taking second place with a comfortable lead over her nearest rival.

There were several outstanding features contributed by the Siwashers. One was John Lewis' tie for first in the pole vault. Bob Klinger was barely beaten by inches in the quarter mile race, had the race been a yard farther Bob could have eked out a win from his adversary, Hein of North Central. John Lewis won second in the javelin. The climax of the meet as far as Knox was concerned was her winning of the mile relay event which was stepped off in very fast time. The Siwash gallants who ran this race were Finley, for whom Coach Walton deserves credit for finding his potentialities as a quarter miler instead of being a dash man. Twyman, the best form runner on the squad, Herlocker, a sturdy and consistent quarter miler, and Bob Klinger who ran as anchor man of the squad and also who showed his heels to the herd behind him. In this race Bob ran a smart quarter by letting his opponent break the wind on the first turn and on the straightaway, then letting forth a burst of speed which left the nearest man far in arrears.

Siwash enjoyed the most successful track season in recent years by taking both dual meets and winning seconds in the Quadrangular, Mid-west and Little Nineteen meets. With six returning lettermen and a group of promising freshmen Old Siwash need not worry about the oncoming season because all indications point that Knox will have even a stronger aggregation than this year.

Here's one of Knox's shortest track men. He looks as if someone had dropped him when he was young and he had splattered out in every direction. He's broad-shouldered, stocky and carries a power-house of strength in his arms. In the meets Riel threw the javelin and broad jumped for Siwash. He was good enough in any meet to come through with a couple of points. Knox will miss Riel both in football and in track next year. All-around men like him are hard to find.

DON SPERRY

Sperry's event is the two-mile endurance contest. This requires a maximum of training all year and every ounce of determination that a man can summon during a race. Sperry had the stuff it takes. Remember his sprint at the end of those eight laps that usually netted him a second or third in a race? It was really a thrill to watch him run. Don's back next year to run once more for Siwash.

BOB TWYMAN

Bob has one of the sweetest strides of any track man. He just seems to glide along, freely and without effort. He was a member of the relay team that won first in the state meet. Judging from the way he trains and his running form we predict an even greater season for him next year. With two more years ahead of him we can't help but look on the future track seasons with a little more hope.

MAX WOLF

Have you ever been around the gym about four in the afternoon and stayed there till six? If you had any afternoon this spring, you would have seen this man throwing the shot time and time again and working with the discus. All of this practice didn't go to waste. Wolf got either a first or a second in our meets. Good weight men are scarce at Knox, and his leaving makes our chances even slimmer.

GEORGE BOWMAN

Bowman was the captain of this year's track team—one of the best that Knox has had. George starred in the hurdle events and in the high jump. In our dual meet with Macomb George won both the hurdle events and placed third in the broad jump—quite an accomplishment for one day's work. We expected great things of Bowman this year and he didn't fail us. This is his last year.

AL FINLEY

This is the second year that Finley made his letter. He was a dash man and later in the season was placed on the relay team. It was here that Finley did his best work. He was a clever runner, matching his opponents stride for stride and usually finishing in a fast sprint. It was a real thrill to watch him in the state meet, holding his own against some of the fastest men in the state and so helping Knox to win the race.

DON HERLOCKER

Every so often a track coach is blessed with a man who comes out hoping to make his letter and willing to work for it. Coach Walton had just such a man in Herlocker. He had a powerful pair of legs and was willing to train for the season. Herlocker was not a spectacular runner but he was consistent and could be depended upon to do his best in a race. He was another member of that famous relay team. He'll be back next year.

RALPH HUMPHREYS

It's hard to believe that such a little man could ever make his letter in track, especially in the high jump, when the bar was well over his head. But Ralph was an oddity—he could. It was rather queer watching him slip over the bar which was well over his head, but he did it so consistently that you became used to it. Ralph has one more year to jump. Incidentally, he is the only active member of Sigma Delta Psi.

TOM KELLY

There's one thing we'd like to have explained. How did this man ever clear twelve or more feet and get away with it? When he came down the cinder path, his feet working like pistons, it looked as though he would never be able to keep the end of the pole up till he reached the bar. But he managed it somehow and usually got over the bar. Tom was able enough to consistently clear twelve feet. He graduates this spring.

BOB KLINGER

Here's the captain-elect for next year—and we couldn't ask for a better man. He was able to break fifty seconds this year in the quarter-mile and run in the relay afterwards. One of the remarkable features of his running is his stride. He covers eight feet in one stride when going full-blast. Don't think it isn't great to watch him in the quarter-mile overtaking the runners one by one and then winning. He has two more years—we can expect a lot from him before he's through.

JOHN LEWIS

This is the man who holds the Midwest Conference record in the pole vault—and here, too, is the man who can hurl the javelin one hundred and seventy or eighty-odd feet. John has been on the track team for three years and won a letter each year. In fact, he did this in the two other major sports. He was one of the best all-round athletes to ever attend Knox. We'll really miss him next year when the track season rolls around.

ROSCOE PULLEN

Roscoe is Knox's big hope in the cross country and in the two-mile race. A two-miler is not a spectacular runner—he can't be—he has to be steady, never giving himself to sprinting. And generally, too, a two-miler is small—excess weight is too much to carry around for two miles. Roscoe also runs the mile in remarkable time, scoring second in the State. In the light of these requirements, Roscoe is an ideal two-miler. He did make remarkably good time—and he was improving at the end of the year. We can safely predict a good year for him next season, his third year of competition.

Golf, 1934

The Knox Golf team, 1934 edition, enjoyed a successful season, winning the Little Nineteen Championship.

The first meeting of the season showed the champions were in form by resulting in a defeat to Macomb by an  $11\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  score. Bradley was next to taste defeat at the strokes of the Knox players. The match was played at the Soangetaha Club course, Knox winning by a 7 to 5 score.

The only defeat of the season came in the return match at Bradley. Bradley won by a  $6\frac{1}{2}$  to  $5\frac{1}{2}$  score. In the annual Midwest meet in Cedar Rapids, May 19, Knox annexed second place.

The climax of the season came with the winning of the Little Nineteen championship. Louie Anderson tied for fourth place honors in this meet.

The versatile team consisted of Louis Anderson, Craig Calkins, Bud Miller and Don Larson who deserve much credit for their excellent work.

All men will return for this year's team with the exception of Craig Calkins who graduated.

At the close of the brilliant season the following were presented with gold charms: Louis Anderson, Craig Calkins, Bud Miller, and Don Larson.

Swimming

In their first swimming endeavor the Siwash mermen handed the Monmouth College swimming team a 42-33 defeat. Captain Beardsley had things quite to his own liking in the pool at Monmouth. He captured the fifty and one-hundred yard free-style swims and also was a participant in both of the victorious relay teams. On top of all this, Lee shattered two records, clipping more than a second off of each event.

Dunbar won the fancy diving event and placed second in the 100 yard back-stroke. Other point-getters were Arnold, Herlocker, Wolff, and Youngren.

At the State meet Siwash was barely nosed out of third place and had to accept a fourth. In this meet Siwash did not score as many points as was expected nor did Captain Beardsley succeed in breaking the 100 yard free-style as he had done the week previously, but winning twelve points with such stiff competition merits much praise.

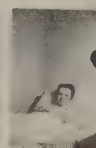

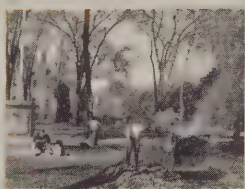

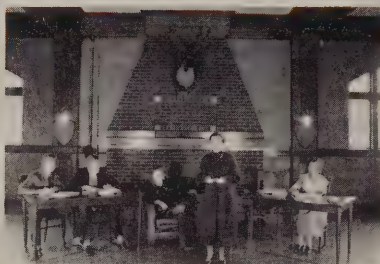

Both the relay teams swam brilliant races only to be shaded by Illinois College and St. Viator swimmers. Beardsley picked up a second in the 100 yard free-style and a fourth in the 50 yard free-style. Dunbar grabbed two fourths in the fancy diving and backstroke events while the other point-getter was Youngren who captured a fourth in the 100 yard breast-stroke which accounted for the Siwashaer points.

The Siwash swimming squad deserves much credit for its deeds because the swimming facilities were inadequate, making it doubly hard for the Siwash hopefuls.

W. A. A. OFFICERS

W. A. A.

1934-1935 has been a red-letter year for the Women's Athletic Association. Not only have the various teams been kept busy with activities on their home campus, but they have engaged in combat on other college campuses as well. Rockford was the scene of a hockey game early in the fall, and the tennis team has been invited to Decatur to play in a state meet at Millikin University.

Miss Bielefeldt

The Knox Association was founded in 1914 for the purpose of promoting health and interest in athletic activities for women. The organization is a member of the Mid-Western Colleges Association. W. A. A. has a membership of thirty, and is one of the most active organizations on the campus. Through a well directed sports program, it provides opportunity for enthusiastic activity in athletics and everything that goes with such activity. It is on the athletic field that many of the most genuine friendships are formed.

The past year the organization got its official start on October eighth, at which time a box supper was held in the gym. During this first meeting President Balsley talked on the purpose of the Women's Athletic Association, and Miss Bielefeldt welcomed the freshmen into W. A. A. The work of the organization is carried on entirely by student officers and council, with the assistance of the faculty advisor, Miss Evelyn Bielefeldt. The officers for the year 1934-35 have been: Gene Balsley, President; Jessica Gault, Vice-President; Virginia Kost, Secretary; and Marjorie Campbell, Treasurer. The council is composed of the officers and heads of sports. The activity managers arrange a schedule of games and practices, choose the class teams, and supervise all the attending details. The sports managers for this past season were: Anna Campbell, hockey manager; Shirley Bogg, volleyball manager; Peg Dieterich, basketball manager; Frances Birkenbusch, baseball manager; Margaret Gessner, tennis manager; and Lucille Quinn, badminton manager.

Active membership in W. A. A. is gained through the accumulation of two-hundred points; associate membership through the accumulation of one hundred points. Points are awarded by the physical education instructor and class managers for: position on the first inter-class team, 100; position on the second inter-class team, 50; attendances at practices, without making either first or second teams, 25. The teams are chosen on the basis of attendance, interest, and skill. An admirable feature of the sports program is that it offers activity for all. The best players are not divided into squads to receive all the training. The practices take up the greater part of the schedule, the tournament between chosen teams never taking more than a week at the end of the season.

W. A. A. MEMBERS

An interesting as well as successful project of W. A. A. was the Doll show. Jeannette Higgins, Rebecca Harlan, and Wilma Lanning were in charge of the show. The dolls were presented in the recreation room at Whiting Hall, and the proceeds were given to the Y. W. C. A. Another W. A. A. success was the Homecoming float last fall, which was awarded the cup for women's organizations.

W. A. A. presents to its member who has succeeded in accumulating twelve hundred points a white "K" sweater. The highest honor given in W. A. A. is the "best athlete" insignia. It is awarded to the senior girl who has throughout her four years of college best represented the ideals of W. A. A. The choice is made by a committee composed of the Women's Physical Education Director, Miss Bielefeldt, and the junior class members of the W. A. A. Council. Skill alone does not make an athlete. The qualifications for the award in order of their importance are: good sportsmanship, co-operation, versatility, and excellence in athletics, interest in W. A. A., and a scholastic average of at least "C". The award has always been announced at the last meeting of the year.

The sports season started off with a bang last fall with enthusiasm running high for hockey. There was a good representation for this ever-favorable sport, and by the end of the season the sophomore team was crowned the champion. During the cold winter months basketball, volleyball, badminton, and ping-pong were popular sports among members of W. A. A. Life saving classes were also conducted under the leadership of Helen Landon. The outdoor sports again come to the front with the first advent of spring. Golf on the municipal links, riding at Dunn's Academy, and baseball and tennis on the campus were indulged in by the enthusiasts of each sport. In the women's sports world on the Knox campus, the Sophomores reign all-powerful, all of their aggregations having won championships in the various sports.

W. A. A. waved eloquent on May 10, which was Women's Day on the Knox campus. Those members who had shown unrivaled prowess in the sports of tennis, baseball, badminton, ping-pong, archery, and deck-tennis put on exhibitions during the day, both indoors and out. In the afternoon the second annual Gymkhana was given at Dunn's riding academy. The show was sponsored by Thunder On The Left, the riding club, and the equestriennes showed their versatility by riding in everything from "military drills to last round-ups".

During its twenty-one years of growth at Knox, the Women's Athletic Association has developed into one of the most outstanding and recreational organizations on the campus.

As the GALE goes to press we are unable to give the "best athlete" award mentioned earlier in our story. We would have liked to but time was pressing and the GALE has to go to press. The Sophomores are still winning according to the last reports and with Herlocker, Quinn and Dieterich with them it looks like a clean sweep for them. In our haste to get the book out on time we were forced to leave out the new members who have just made the grade. They will be back next year to support W. A. A. in all its activities.

Intramural Managers

The task of guiding, inspiring, and cajoling the "frat" teams rests upon the intramural managers. It is up to the managers of the organization's team to pick his men for each sport, see that the team gets sufficient practice, participate in the arranging of the schedules and if his team is not a success, submit to the excessive criticisms from his brothers for not having done this and that. In one sense the intramural manager is the most valuable man in the "frat", for the rating of this organization on the campus depends in no small part on its athletic victories.

The Phi Gams have entrusted the job of managing to Don Larson. Don, besides being a member of the basketball squad, is prominent in other school activities.

John Russell is the whip for the Phi Deltas. He must be a good one, too. For the Phi Deltas, thus far, have two victories to their credit, one in volleyball, one in kittenball and a strong indication of getting either a first or second in basketball.

The job of managing the Betas belongs to Tom Pogue. Besides his manager job, Pogue also takes a hand in the games himself, often to the dissatisfaction of the Beta opponents. The Betas won the golf championship.

It takes two men to run the Sigma Nu athletic teams according to the reports from the east side. Bill Ralf and Ralph Humphreys have the responsibility. These men also participate in most of the games. The Sigma Nus won the rifle championship for the second consecutive year.

Freddy Plette is the manager of the Lambda Chis. He hasn't always been able to run a team due to the lack of material.

The Tekes find their manager in John Pause. Competition from the house of Teke is always keen.

The Phi Sigs have chosen a good manager in "Coke" Helgeson. "Coke" is also a member of the basketball squad.

Dick Lindsey has assumed the responsibility of managing the non-fraternity men. Besides being a capable intramural manager, "Dick" is a good debater.

George Fitch, '97

No matter what the assignment calls for, it is no use trying to write a life story of George Fitch for Siwashers to read. As Edmund Vance Cooke intimates, that Fitch was born in Galva, Illinois, on the fifth of June, 1877, is interesting, but according to Fitch's own analysis of collegiate psychology dates mean nothing to students, and so it is really no use presenting them. Likewise, it is absolutely inessential to balance the account by stating that George Fitch died on the ninth of August, 1915, because any Siwasher knows that George Fitch is not dead, and can point to the dedication of this issue of the GALE to prove it. What, then, is there to say about him?

It can be said that he was one of those people who always leave a host of kind and tender memories behind them, and to attempt to arrange these recollections in any semblance of order and continuity would destroy the charm that is theirs. Those who knew him as a member of the class of '97 remember his tall and slender build, the hair that was usually too long, the wide mouth that could awkwardly smile at the slightest provocation. So magnetic was the shy personality to which these attributes were attached, that even today they delight with him in his favorite pastimes—cartooning and bicycle riding—and are almost as proud of the century pin, which was awarded to cyclists covering a hundred miles in a single day, and which he wore, as he was.

It can be said that to Francis Sisson, editor of the Galesburg Evening Mail while Fitch was at Knox, he was an unobtrusive but persistent young man who wanted a job on the newspaper, and that he finally won out and became the paper's official correspondent in the college.

It can be said that Fitch filled his assignment rather indifferently, rarely procuring the little details that make up supposedly good news stories. Instead, he contributed his humor and his own, inimitable commentaries; and finally, when sent to cover an Afro-American bicycle race, he turned in a story so good that his faculty as a humorist was recognized, and he started a column of his own. Soon after he edited the Galva News and then the Fort Madison Republican, and in 1902 he began his "Frolics of the Types" in the Council Bluffs Nonpareil. This latter was a column of humorous sketches, some of which were later collected to form Fitch's first published book. His reputation was now growing, he married Clara Gattrell Lynn, and, in 1905, he accepted the editorship of the Peoria Herald-Transcript.

It was while he was editing and writing for the Herald that his great humorous treatment of the presentation of "Parsifal" by the Chicago Grand Opera Company appeared. This story was reprinted in the New York Sun and in many other papers, and many national publications started to present his works.

It can also be said that it was with the publication of his "Vest Pocket Essays" by the Adams Newspaper Syndicate during the years 1911-1915 that his national reputation as a humorist was firmly established. The essays dealt with a variety of subjects, from noses to babies, and were widely read. Now followed a period of productivity during which he contributed to the Saturday Evening Post, Red Book, Collier's and many other magazines, found time to serve in the Illinois legislature, and which terminated only with his sudden death in Berkeley, California.

But it can finally be said that all of these things do not represent the Fitch that has been loved and remembered by Knoxians. That Fitch is the man who created Siwash and who immortalized the Siwash spirit. He is the Fitch that is still found in the classrooms and on the campus of Knox College, and in the heart of every Siwasher. In fact, so inextricably has he become one with this intangible mood that pervades the college, that among newcomers he is almost unknown as the man himself. He is a legend, and is recognized not as a figure in a biographical account, but as the personifier and the personification of the Knox spirit.

And perhaps this is just as well. It was this spirit which made him different and above other men, and it is that by which he should be remembered. Thus a Siwasher may be forgiven for not knowing the date of Fitch's birth, but he cannot be forgiven for forgetting what he stands for.

KNOX COLLEGE

Etymology a la Carte

The following article was taken from the Homecoming issue of the Siwasher. Vincent Tomas is the author. We use it here because it expresses so completely one of the purposes of this GALE-Editor.

It is difficult to imagine that twenty-five years ago Knox College was simply Knox College and not dear old Siwash. Generation after generation of collegians, every bit as gay and enthusiastic as those of the present, came to Knox, lived for Knox, were willing to die for Knox, and yet not once did they include "Siwash" in their football yells. How they got along as well as they did with Siwash without once referring to it by its nickname is a mystery. They could get about as intimate with their college as one can with a friend one still calls Mister.

This tragic state of affairs was finally remedied by George Fitch, who since he did not address his mother as Mrs. Fitch, could see no reason why he should do so in the case of his alma mater. So, for this "no reason", he did not do so. He dubbed Knox "Siwash", and thereby hangs a tale.

Of course, it is possible to argue that Fitch intended Siwash to be merely a pseudonym, but such an explanation is too prosaic and unromantic for a true Siwasher. Siwash is too midwestern, too small-collegeish, too Knoxonian, to be a mere disguise. It can be none other than the brilliant invention that was finally born of a long felt necessity. George Fitch, class of upteen umpteen, was a real, dyed-in-the-wool Siwasher, and he'd be darned if he wouldn't call Knox by its first name, even if he had to make one up.

The long awaited baptism occurred at the close of the first decade of the present century, when the Siwash stories first appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Here, in an assortment of tales as collegiate, as joyous, and as light as the heads of sophomores, was founded the Siwash tradition. Here, for the first time, the Knox spirit was captured on the printed page, and the carefree side of Siwash life exposed. Fitch himself claimed that the stories were universal and typical of all colleges, but the reader can readily see that they are so only in that all colleges and all collegians resemble each other in their essential nature and in the essential nature of their mischief. No other college possesses the attributes of Siwash so much as Knox, and no other college can claim George Fitch, who could not but be swayed and influenced more by his own college than any other.

So the Siwash stories, bound now in two volumes, Pete S'mmons at Old Siwash and At Good Old Siwash, comprise an authentic record of Knox amities, enmities, loyalties, and frivolities. They are, or should be, a part of the education of every Knox student who aspires to be a Siwasher. And they are, and should not be, fallen into neglect.

William Allen White, in 1926, wrote, "I once spent a day or two at Knox College and everywhere about the campus one ran into the Fitch tradition. One found stories of him there. He lingers on that campus as an amiable and affectionate ghost under the high elms of the cloister. Students point to this room, to that tree, to the other building where Fitch capered on his way through his student life." That could not be said today. A little of the legend is preserved at Fitch's Eta Beta Pie house, but those whom he immortalized as the Alfalfa Delts, the Delta Kappa Sonafaguns, the Sigma Numerous, the Shy Delts, have, for the most part, forgotten. Incoming freshmen arrive on his Hither, Yonder, and Elsewhere Railroad and are entirely unaware that they are repeating a thrilling and wonderful experience. Sagacious seniors stroll before Old Main without once thinking, as Fitch did, of shinnying up the water spout and stealing the clapper of the bell. They know nothing of Ole Skjarsen, the great halfback who was told to take the ball and run, and who refused to stop even for the grandstands or the Mississippi. They come, they go, and they ought to be shot for overlooking an integral part of their Siwash curriculum.

The stories can be obtained at the Knox College library.

The Siwasher who reads them will laugh a great deal, will look at himself and at Old Main in a new light, and besides, will learn a lot of new tricks to play on the professors.

High Spots of the Year

When Petey Simmons Jr. came to Siwash, he fully expected to find it in the same condition that his father, Petey Simmons Sr. had left it. That was merry, friendly, and very much alive.

When Petey Simmons Jr. had been at Siwash a few months, he wrote home to Petey Sr. whom he addressed as the Old Grad, and told him that Siwash was everything he had expected it to be, but that he himself was very, very dead.

To begin with, there was the arrival of more freshmen than had ever cluttered up the campus since the Eta Beta Pies had advertised free tuition, board, and graduation credits to all prospective pledges. They swarmed in and out of Old Main, asked more silly questions, and created more laughs that first week or so in a manner that put to shame the best efforts of the good old days, the Old Grad himself, and all the rushing tricks of the stand pat Shy Delts and Sigma Numerous of yesterday. At the Pumphandle they had apparently been misinformed that the proper thing to do was to grip hard, and the seniors nursed sore right hands almost up to the opening football game. So numerous was this "Green Peril" that it became useless to attempt coercion when they refused to button, and the little green caps bobbed along unmolested, even when the traditional frosh-soph fight should have been fought. But, with the budding of the Roberts-Neubacher romance so very early in the season, hostilities between the two classes were forgotten, and the school year got off to a flying start.

October and November were particularly concerned with, as all the world knows, Siwash's unvictorious football team. Beginning with the Macomb game, Siwash went through the entire season without once being able to terminate the string of defeats that threatened to displace Hobart College as the most losingest team on record. Augustana, Illinois, Beloit, Cornell, Coe, Bradley, and Monmouth—all had their chance and took it. There was nothing to do but to fight hard, to whitewash the town, and to pray for an Ole Skjarsen. Even when Coach Lloyd Burdick's scathing chapel address failed to break the jinx, the team came back for more. And finally the season ended with the Thanksgiving day game against Monmouth, which left Siwash with its twenty-seventh consecutive defeat, unprecedented notoriety throughout the land, and still no Ole.

But the gloom of the gridiron did not penetrate to social affairs. The various victrola parties and the K. A. W. S. dance cheered many a dreary heart and initiated the social season. Then, on October 27, came Homecoming, and even the chagrin over a 13-0 loss to Beloit could not mar the festivities. On the eve of the Homecoming tussel, close upon the stroke of midnight, the intrepid academioiselles of Whiting Hall took the bit in their teeth, made an impromptu getaway by means of the fire escapes, and delighted the fraternities with their serenading. Returning in the wee small hours, they were well prepared to beguile many a loyal alum into purchasing blossoms, red as the blood that was shed for Siwash, for the game.

On Saturday afternoon the usual parade through the city streets took place, with the Phi Sigs copping first place with their prize-winning float, "Sailing through Beloit". As usual, the Phi Gams, with their inimitable house decorations, walked off with the honors in that field. And in the evening, notwithstanding the reverses of the afternoon, the dance was giddy and gay, for the program called for a good time, win, lose, or draw.

The theater season was exactly the opposite of football as far as results were concerned. Starting with "The Spider", and following with "The School for Scandal", "Hamlet", and "Of Thee I Sing", the stage group played to packed houses that were either placed on the edge of their seats or rolled out into the aisles as the occasion demanded.

During the basketball season, vengeance was achieved by the winning of the second consecutive Midwest Conference championship. There were also the intramurals, with the Phi Delts winning in volleyball, the Betas in basketball, and the Sigma Nus in swimming. Among the fairer sex, the sophs upset the equanimity of the upperclasswomen by licking the seniors in the hockey tournament.

Then there was Hillis Lory, Honnold Lecturer on Japan and the Far East, who injected a great deal of information on current affairs through his class dissertations and public lectures. And Ernest Elmo Calkins, working on his history of the college and the city of Galesburg.

Dad's Day, November 17, witnessed many a proud parent exhibiting his offspring. The Christmas Prom, December 14, witnessed many a proud beauty showing off her man. And the start of Christmas vacation, December 21, witnessed only the dust left by hurried feet on their way homeward.

The gloom engendered by examinations was soon dispelled by the beginning of the new semester. February saw the Phi Delts enjoying themselves during their quarantine, and the infirmary in Seymour Hall was full to the brim. But the hope of hopes remained unfulfilled—school did not close.

February 15, Founders' Day. Nobody was supposed to go to classes, so everybody went. Monday nights, faculty lectures—on books, on meteorites, on economics. And, along toward the end of the month, the announcement of the new football coach, C. W. P. Reynolds."

Of course there was the "Student" every Thursday, with the column containing better bits each week. And the "Siwasher" with its roundup of the literati. Also nine brand new Phi Beta Kappa members, as yet unused to the key.

March 23, the Student Council party. Spring was in the air, and the pairs were strolling in Standish Park. Sleepy classes, budding trees, and rehearsals for "The Admirable Crichton". And, for many, graduation drawing near.

And so Petey Simmons, Jr., exhausted by so full a year, goes home to rest and to think up new schemes to make Siwash continue as it is, and, incidentally, to brush up on those tricky football plays.

A Century of Leadership!

¶ Knox College will soon be one hundred years old. In that time she will have risen from a pioneer's dream to a potent factor in the nation's development—all through the teachings of her classes as reflected in the accomplishments of her alumni. One hundred years is a short time for such progress.

¶ Knox now stands for leadership. The all-round leadership of her alumni has given her this name. As Knox has made her way through the century, she has thus built for herself a reputation for training young men and women for a success which now characterizes Knox graduates in Life—in its enjoyment as well as in its vocations.

Old Negro Woman: "Marse Govenah, I want my Sam pahdoned."

Governor: "What's he in for?"

Old Negro Woman: "For stealin' a ham."

Governor: "Why do you want him pardoned?"

Old Negro Woman: "'Cause we's plumb out of ham again."

It happened at a Junior Prom. The band was in the midst of "Swanee River" when one of the dancers burst into tears. A sweet co-ed hastened to console the young man and asked: "Are you a southerner, that this music affects you so?"

"No, Miss," he sobbed, "I'm a musician."

He: "I'm stroking the varsity crew now."

She: "How splendid!"

He: "Yes, I give the men their rub-downs."

Manager: "What's happened to this unconscious customer with the new overcoat?"

Clerk: "He asked for a belt in the back, so I socked him a wallop."

Some people wonder what the Mormon wedding ceremony is like. It is something akin to this:

Preacher (to groom): "Do you take these women to be your lawfully wedded wives?"

Groom: "I do."

Preacher (to brides): "Do you take this man to be your lawfully wedded husband?"

Brides: "We do."

Preacher: "Some of you girls in back will have to speak louder if you want to be included in this."—Judge.

A SUCCESSFUL ANNUAL

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR BOOK is one that expresses the spirit of the school by translating in book form the individual ideas of the annual staff and the recording of outstanding events of the school year.

This annual expresses the spirit of Knox College, and embodies the ideals of the staff of "THE 1936 GALE" through its pleasing makeup, fine typography, excellent printing and attractive binding, all of which goes to make this a most successful book.

The personal service and hearty co-operation of all those having to do with the mechanical and editorial production of this book has made it an attractive annual.
